Water Chief Davis Quits

RALPH DAVIS

For 'Personal' Reasons He Says

Ralph Davis resigned as chief commissioner of Greater Victoria Water District today. In a letter to Reeve Joseph Casey, chairman, and members of the board, which met this afternoon, he asked that his resignation take effect Thursday.

Davis, centre of a civic storm in January, when Mayor Claude Harrison moved to cut his salary, will take a post with Stevenson & Kellogg, management engineers at Vancouver.

He gave no reasons for his resignation in the letter but stated later they were "personal." He plans to go immediately to his new post.

As the board's first commissioner, Davis has been linked closely with development of the water district since its inception in September, 1948. He was appointed chief commissioner in December and took over the post Jan. 1, 1949.

The first board meeting of 1952 ended in a blow-up with Davis stating he would resign when the mayor's motion that his basic salary be cut by $500 was passed. The board also cut out $400 cost-of-living bonus, a car valued at $600 a year and $120 a year club dues.

ASKED TO REMAIN
Casey asked him to remain until a special committee reported on the matter. Davis agreed.

The committee recommended the basic salary of $7,500 be reinstated. It passed by a 4-3 vote but the other cuts remained.

Davis was educated at Oak Bay High, Victoria College and University of British Columbia. He graduated in civil engineering with a B.A.Sc. in 1935.

He spent three years in mining work in B.C. He served the city for two and a half years and was acting assistant city engineer when he left to join the R.C.A.F. in October, 1941.

He was in aeronautical engineering and spent three years overseas. He was discharged in October, 1945, when the rank of flight lieutenant.

On his return to the city's employ Davis was appointed assistant water commissioner, a post he held until taking over duties of chief water commissioner for the Greater Victoria district.

Sea Volcano
MANILA, March 19 (AP).—A submarine volcano, coming to life after a 90-year sleep, pushed a moving mass of volcanic rock 25 feet above the surface of the Pacific Ocean today.

The turbulent pile of rocks encompassed an area of at least five acres. For 15 acres around it the ocean boiled and bubbled like a witch's brew.

A 10,000-foot column of smoke and sulphurous steam towered. Huge block boulders, some of them five stories high, were tumbled about.

American Dollar Will Be Welcome

Leslie Fritsch, clerk with W. & J. Wilson clothiers, points to sign erected yesterday indicating that local merchants are ready to accept American dollar at par. Canadian dollar was up 1/32 of a cent on the New York market today and is at a premium of 9/16 per cent in terms of United States funds. Ironically, strong Canadian dollar has encouraged local people to do more shopping in United States, immigration officers report. (Times photo.)

EISENHOWER WINS STUNNING SUPPORT

'Write-in' Candidate, Gen. Ike Polls Amazing 39 Per Cent in Republican Primary

MINNEAPOLIS, March 19 (AP).—With nearly two-thirds of the vote in write-in candidate Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower today had won an amazing 39 per cent of the Republican total in Tuesday's Minnesota presidential primary election.

"Favorite-Son" Harold E. Stassen, whose name was printed on the ballot, got about 42 per cent.

Senator Robert Taft (Rep.-Ohio), whose name was not printed on the ballot, got 8.4 per cent of the Republican vote.

The drive for the write-in vote had been started only last Friday following the Attorney General's ruling that such votes would count.

Despite Eisenhower's showing against Stassen, a former Minnesota governor, the election will not automatically mean any national convention delegates for him. No delegate provision for write-in candidates is contained in the primary law.

In the Democratic write-in voting, Senator Estes Kefauver (Dem.-Tenn.) had a heavy margin over President Truman. However, observers felt that much of the Truman vote had gone to Senator Hubert Humphrey (Dem.-Minn.), whose name was the only one printed on the Democratic ballot. Humphrey had announced he would turn over his delegation to Truman should the President decide to run again.

With 2,227 of Minnesota's 3,769 precincts reporting, Eisenhower had 92,883 votes compared with 100,520 for Stassen. Edward C. Slettedahl, a political unknown whose name was also printed on the Republican ballot, got 18,048. Other Republican write-in totals were 19,803 for Taft, 4,515 for Governor Earl Warren of California and 1,264 for Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

Humphrey—the only Democratic ballot candidate—polled 82,642 votes. Kefauver had 16,271 write-ins and Truman 2,971 write-ins.

Government Faces Storm Over P.G.E.

DEFENSE COSTS BETTER THAN $2,000,000,000

Total Expenditures Over $4,000,000,000

OTTAWA, March 19 (CP).—Canadian government expenditures are expected to hit a record peacetime total of $4,335,796,809 in the 1952-53 fiscal year beginning April 1.

The expenditure total, including $2,106,000,000 for defense, was given by Finance Minister Abbott today in tabling in the Commons the estimates for the coming year.

Expenditures for the current year were estimated at $3,730,587,837, but Mr. Abbott said the totals were not strictly comparable. The 1952-53 estimates contained no provision for payments to the provinces under federal-provincial taxation agreements.

The defense estimate of $2,106,000,000 compared with $1,728,000,000 for 1951-52. The totals include expenditures for national defense, defense production and civil defense.

The amount for the navy was $268,000,000 compared with $236,000,000 for the current year; for the army $532,000,000 compared with $459,000,000; and for the air force $759,000,000 compared with $672,000,000.

Salvage King Has Stricken Ship in Tow
Victoria's sea-going tug Salvage King is now on its way to Portland, Ore., towing the disabled British freighter Ss. Darton, which she picked up at 9 Tuesday night 200 miles west of Columbia River lightship.

On Tuesday the U.S. Coast Guard cutter Winona put a line aboard the stricken vessel, and the tug heaved to the wind until the Salvage King arrived on the scene.

The tow originally was to be made by Vancouver. Officials of Pacific Salvage Ltd., operators of Salvage King, did not know when a landfall would be made.

Darton lost her screw Sunday in rough weather during a voyage from Japan to Portland with a crew of 50 aboard.

Attorneys for the steamship company said Olynk was disciplined because he was "in subordinate and mutinous." The company accused Olynk of kicking Capt. Sydney E. Williams in the groin during an argument while the ship was at Batavia, Java.

Olynk said one of the ship's mates brought a girl friend aboard when the vessel stopped at another port and showed him off "as a chained curiosity." The seaman said he was fed only bread and water for the first four days of his imprisonment.

He said that when the ship docked at Houston, Texas, he was tried and found innocent of assaulting the captain.

B.C. SEAMAN CHARGES HE WAS CHAINED

Seeks $100,000 In Damage Suit

SEATTLE, Wash., March 19 (BUP).—A young Canadian seaman charged today that his iron-willed captain chained him to the bridge of the freighter Clyde L. Seavey for 67 days on a voyage half way around the world.

William M. Olynk, 27, of New Westminster, B.C., asked $100,000 damages from the Isthmian Steamship Company because of the chaining and because "I was made the object of ridicule and curiosity at ports the ship visited."

Railway Manager Flatly Opposes Highway Policy

Premier Johnson, early this afternoon, said he is ready to give serious consideration to the motion of the railway committee of the House that there should be further study of the Pacific Great Eastern Railway extension into Vancouver before the go ahead is given on the highway.

The provincial government, which only Monday re-affirmed its policy on a Squamish-Vancouver highway instead of a P.G.E. extension, may be weakening in the face of severe criticism from inside and outside the party.

The railway extension has emerged as a major issue of the current session. The Progressive Conservative and C.C.F. and several Liberals are against the government's decision to build the highway this year instead of the railway.

The change in policy was indicated in the legislature's railway committee this morning when Walter Hendricks (Govt., Nelson-Creston), succeeded in getting passed a motion calling for further investigation to determine if a highway and railway can be built along Howe Sound. The motion also asked that the highway project be held up until further efforts are made to get permission to build a Squamish-Vancouver highway through the Vancouver watershed.

An amendment, introduced by E. C. Carson, former works minister who wants the railroad built, asked that the $3,000,000 allocated for the highway be used for the railroad extension instead. It also asked that the government negotiate further for permission to build a highway through the watershed. The amendment lost 5-4.

Carson charged that Hendricks' motion, supported by all other government members on the committee, is aimed at stalling the whole project.

The committee heard the railway's popular general manager, J. A. Kennedy, talk against Premier Byron Johnson's policy. He came flat out in favor of the railway extension.

"If you want the north country business to go to Alberta, don't build the extension. If you don't build that extension, you might as well turn northern B.C. over to Alberta. Ninety-five per cent of Prince George business now goes to Edmonton," said Kennedy. "Vancouver should enjoy that business. The only reason it doesn't is because there is no direct line."

ALBERTA HARDSHIP
Ure Coming Here to Seek Embargo End

EDMONTON, March 19 (CP).—Agriculture Minister David Ure will leave Thursday for Victoria in an attempt to have British Columbia lift its embargo on meat and live animals from Alberta.

Mr. Ure will confer with B.C. Agriculture Minister Harry Bowman and other B.C. government officials.

Agriculture Minister Harry Bowman will announce Thursday or Friday when British Columbia's livestock embargo will be relaxed.

In Line for Top Awards
Shelley Winters, Marlon Brando and Vivien Leigh are among the stars in line for top awards.

Upside Down Movies, Snubs, Bearded Strangers Part of Hollywood Classic

HOLLYWOOD, March 19 (UP).—If history holds, the boners pulled at the 22nd annual Academy Awards ceremonies Thursday night will furnish most of the drama.

Vivien Leigh and Marlon Brando are favored to make the headlines for the best acting of 1951. But Oscar time is also the night when somebody doesn't follow the script.

One war year producer-director Cecil B. DeMille brought down the house when he introduced the ambassador from China as being from Japan. Award-goers have never forgotten the time winner Olivia De Havilland snubbed sister Joan Fontaine backstage. . . or the year the projectionist got excited and showed the winning movies upside down.

Stars' acceptance speeches often have more drama than the dialogue from winning movies.

Fredric March, who may win this year for "Death of a Salesman," tied with the late Wallace Beery in 1932, the first and only tie in Oscar history. By coincidence the March and Beery families had each just adopted a child.

"Which makes it seem a little odd," March told the audience, "that Beery and I were given awards for the best male performances of the year."

Mary Pickford was struck speechless when she won in 1932. Greer Garson orated for 45 minutes when she won for "Mrs. Miniver." She and other stars said their co-workers should have won the Oscars.

Writer Donald Ogden Stewart put an end to that with his speech. "I want it understood that I alone am responsible for the success of 'Philadelphia Story.' Nobody turned a finger to help me."

The academy now requests the stars to say practically nothing.

TUBBY HUBBY DIET

Blissful Tom Drops 24 Ounces

By TOM MERRIMAN
Check and double check. Cheers! It's working. Change that 179½ pounds to 178. At that rate the success of the 12-day diet is more than in the bag.

Last night I was sour, disgruntled, disappointed . . . and more than a trifle hungry. Those promises of Josephine Lowman that tubby hubbys can take her diet without even noticing a difference can be taken with a grain of salt . . . some of the salt she tells the dieters to go easy on.

Before going to bed yesterday (without the usual spot of something, and a sandwich or two), I penned a few lines.

I was in a different mood from the elated one inspired by the scales this morning.

Last night I doubted the ability of any woman, no matter how expert, to list a diet for a man. There is too much of the stuff you see women eating as substitutes for real food; lettuce, tossed green salad, cottage cheese, raw apples and so on.

Surely no male would list such rabbit food for men.

THIRD DAY DIET—Page 14
Cottage cheese? Of all the unsatisfying, tasteless, useless, innocuous concoctions, give me cottage cheese . . . or rather don't give me cottage cheese.

Thank heaven it only comes once more in the 12-day course. That's the day when we really go all-out on cheese.

We get a Swiss cheese sandwich on the same lunch diet. Swiss cheese, uh!

Why not rich, ripe cheddar, Danish blue or gorgonzola? Making it more exasperating is the fact that in the "frig" we have a plastic jar nearly full of rich, well-ripened, marble-streaked imported cheese. It is the last of two jars sent as a Christmas present by a generous Californian who has them specially packed by masters of the

Bandit Sutton Turns on Stagecraft at Hearing

Noted Desperado Adopts Meek, Mild Attitude As Police Guard Witnesses, Judge 24 Hours

NEW YORK, March 19 (UP).—Slippery Willie Sutton will be pictured by defense attorneys during his $64,000 bank robbery trial as a man who would rather tote a good book than a gun, it was indicated today.

As the trial entered its second day there was no relaxing of the bristling force of guards which surrounded the court house and swarmed its corridors. The judge and prosecution witnesses were under 24-hour police protection.

Sutton, the 51-year-old master bank bandit who is known as "The Actor" to the underworld, turned turning on his stagecraft when his trial began in Queens County Court Tuesday.

STUDIOUS POSE
He carefully placed before him on the defense counsel table two books, "Peace of Soul" and "Peace of Mind." Then he clasped his hands benignly in front of him, fluttered his eyelids meekly, and paid studious attention to the picking of a jury.

They, along with a volume of Freud, a first-aid book, and a chess instruction book, were found in Sutton's apartment when he was captured.

The book angle might be used in an effort to lessen the shadow which the Arnold Schuster murder has cast over the trial. Schuster, 24, a clothing salesman, pointed out Sutton to police last Feb. 18. Shortly afterwards, Schuster began getting threatening letters. On March 8 he was shot dead near his home.

The Schuster murder had been expected to prolong the picking of a jury in the joint trial of Sutton and his henchman, Thomas "Mad Dog" Kling, 47. They are accused of robbing the Sunnyside branch of the Manufacturers Trust Co. on March 9, 1950.

It had been expected that fear of reprisal—such as Schuster got—might make some of the prospective jurors reluctant to serve. But out of a preliminary panel of 250 called yesterday, only 60 offered excuses, which court observers said was a normal number.

Attorneys for the defense and prosecution questioned 11 veniremen as they began to pick a jury yesterday. Three were accepted tentatively but right was reserved to dismiss them. Of the seven excused, two said they had formed an opinion from reading the newspapers, two said serving would interfere with their business, one had a bad cold, one was a bank employee, and one said he would not believe the testimony of John De Venuta who was indicted with Sutton and Kling but was given a severance of trial when he offered to testify against them.

TAKE A TIP

Here's a Safety Tip from the Victoria Automobile Club: It takes FORESIGHT to be a good driver. The driver who can size up the situation and then act promptly and correctly, is the driver who stays out of trouble.

ON THE TIMES

By ART STOTT

A community takes its own measurements of a man. It weighs his strengths against his weaknesses. It listens to his friends describe his virtues. It hears his critics discuss his flaws. It collects the individual impressions of its people, sifts them and reaches an assessment of the man's worth. It recognizes in him a distinguishing character and gives to him the respect he has earned.

So it is today with Victoria remembering Reg Hammond. The city weighs his strengths against his weaknesses, finding greatness in his character and weakness only in a body of frailties he fought so well to master. It listens to friends describe his virtues, and they are legion high in their praise. It seeks to hear critics discuss his flaws and hears none, save the sympathetic murmur of acquaintances speaking of the ailments which he suffered.

The community makes its own assessment and recognizes his distinguishing character—a high, shining courage that has been an inspiration to those who knew him, a flame of the spirit that will not dim in their memory.

There may be epitaphs raised to the memory of Reg Hammond, and it would be fine to have some endowment that might perpetuate his name through help to students of the future. But for Reg Hammond, no epitaph is needed. He inscribed his own in the hearts of those who had known him.

Reg Hammond was a boy with an infectious smile, a boy who looked even younger than his years, when he began his course in his boy under Jeff Cunningham at Victoria College in the late '20's. His was an absorbing study of the subject and to it he brought a student's mind, clear in its search for the meaning of things.

A Scholar and Teacher

He was a scholar, though not a bookish one, and a teacher who mastered the different phases of his work and already indicated to his less adept classmates his potentialities as an instructor in the coaching he gave them.

When he graduated from U.B.C. it seemed natural that he should return to Victoria High School to teach and to show the development of those qualities that had been noted in him as a student.

Yet it was not merely Reg Hammond's progress in an ever-expanding subject that established for him his place in the school and the community. His position was assured by the abilities he brought to the task of winning the confidence of his classes, of infecting them with a desire to learn. To the bright he offered the challenge of higher understanding. To those less gifted he displayed an unending patience. And to all he gave that encouragement which was so much a part of his nature.

For years it had been an open secret that Reg Hammond lived in pain, sleeping often on a board to ease an ailing back. More recently a complicated blood condition had increased the burdens on his uncertain health.

Hidden Behind a Smile

These things were known, but were hidden behind the smile he gave acquaintances. From him came no complaint. You met Reg and exchanged greetings, feeling that exhilarating lift that comes from people who seem happy to see you. You left him marveling a little at his ability to cheer you—and recognizing the high courage that was his.

You recall now the quietly spoken words of friends who knew his story, of the almost constant fight he waged for health. And you recall, too, the nearly inarticulate tributes of young students, too shy to uncover their feelings, who merely said, "He's swell."

Reg Hammond has lost his battle against his illness. His life has been cut short. Yet his influence will live. It will survive among those who called him friend and those who called him teacher. His memory will be an unfading smile, a spirit of valor, and an inner strength passed on to others so it shall not perish.

Retailers Rap R.C.M.P. Canteen Discount Usage

The retail merchants group of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce has condemned the practice of trade discounts at R.C.M.P. canteens.

At a meeting Tuesday, the Victoria merchants heard the complaint that members of the federal police force are using their city canteen to get goods at lower prices than they would pay in stores.

One merchant said: "Several members of the local force have asked me to charge their purchases to the canteen in order to get a trade discount. So far we have refused and as a result have lost at least one order."

The meeting heard a letter read on the subject from R.C.M.P. in Ottawa. Officials there stated that if police officers were using the canteen to buy furniture and appliances plus the canteen was going beyond its powers.

The merchants' group finally resolved to request the local R.C.M.P. commissioner to define the scope of canteen purchasing in Victoria.

MAINLAND 'BOOKIES' FOUND NOT GUILTY

Jury Acquits 26 Alleged Conspirators;
Crown Claims Stiff Blow Dealt Bookmaking

VANCOUVER, March 19 (CP)—An Assize Court jury Tuesday night acquitted 26 alleged bookmaking conspirators but the prosecution claimed it has delivered a stiff blow against illegal wagering.

Prosecutor Gordon Scott said bookmaking has been reduced to a minimum here and that some self-confessed bookies indicate they are going—or have gone—out of business.

During the 22-day trial some of the defendants admitted they were keepers of betting houses but denied being involved in a conspiracy.

The 25 men and one woman—three of them publishers or distributors of racing information—were charged with conspiring to operate a $6,000,000-a-year bookmaking business from 1947 until late in 1951.

All were acquitted after the jury had deliberated three and a half hours.

Prosecutor Scott said the Crown will not appeal the verdict.

The Crown claimed the alleged conspiracy centred around Massie White, calling him the "kingpin."

"If I'd wanted to be the kingpin of bookmakers," White said following his acquittal, "I'd have been a bookmaker."

At least—resume operation of a racing wire service which brought results and entries from the United States.

"As far as racing information is concerned, I'm out for the time being," he said. "But as regards to horse racing, I'm still in."

Attorney-General Gordon Wismer, who took about 90 minutes out from his duties in the House to be guest speaker at the meeting, urged everyone to use their second vote in the transferrable voting system for a free enterprise candidate rather than leaving it blank.

Socialism, he said, in either C.C.F. or Social Credit philosophy, must not be brought into B.C.

"The Social Credit is coming in here under false pretences. They can't implement one single plank of Social Credit in B.C. It can't be done constitutionally except through Ottawa. It can't be done on a provincial level," said Wismer.

Rivals for Socreds' Leadership to Speak

W. A. C. Bennett, Independent M.L.A. from South Okanagan, and W. N. Chant, former agriculture minister in the Alberta Government, will address a public meeting tonight at Wilfrid School.

Both men are candidates for the leadership of the Social Credit party.

An organizational meeting was held Tuesday night at Cadboro Bay.

Dope Peddler Tells Of Bribing Police

WASHINGTON, March 19 (AP).—James M. Roberts, a convicted dope peddler, swore Tuesday he made regular monthly payments, running up to $1,800, to two Washington police officers for "go-ahead" to sell narcotics. The officers denied it.

LONDON, March 19 (Reuters).—It is expected to cost $410,000 to maintain Britain's Royal palaces for the fiscal year 1952-53, it was shown in figures released Monday. The figure is just £100 more than last year. It includes $42,000 for fuel, gas, electricity, water and household articles.

B.C. Retail Group Favors U.S. Wine

The sale of California wine in B.C. liquor stores would be favored by the retail merchants' group of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce.

The retailers voted at a meeting Tuesday to support the campaign to put California wines on the shelves of provincial liquor stores.

G. A. Hedden, chairman of the meeting, said: "While we as retailers have nothing to do with the sale and distribution of wines, we can as citizens and business men go on record in favor of the sale of these products here."

Bob Nelles, B.C. representative of a California wine company, told the meeting that B.C. wine growers had been protected from the competition of U.S. wines here for almost 30 years. In that time, he argued, they had ample opportunity to outgrow the status of an "infant industry" which might conceivably entitle them to some protection. He said they had reached the peak of their business several years ago.

He denied the B.C. Federation of Agriculture's charges that the California growers would dump wines on the local market. "The Canadian federal tariff would be a real safeguard against any dumping," he said.

Condensed from CP, AP, and UP Dispatches

SQUARED—In New York the United States squared off against Russia today in the United Nations on the Communist charge that American troops have been waging germ warfare in Korea and China.

U.S. Representative Benjamin V. Cohen was expected to make a full-dress reply to the charge of Soviet delegate Jacob A. Malik when the U.N.'s 12-nation disarmament commission meets.

Malik, parroting the propaganda of the Chinese Communist and North Korean radio outlets, made his charge last week at the first working session of the new commission set up to investigate ways and means of ending the world's armament race.

FATAL—In Winnipeg a 68-year-old man today was being held by R.C.M.P. in connection with the fatal shooting of Mylo Carlson, 35, at Winnipegosis, 250 miles north of the city.

R.C.M.P. at Winnipeg said Elmer Morris was being held following the shooting Tuesday night around 11:30, C.S.T.

Police said an inquest will be held but declined further comment.

AFRAID—In Washington, a high government official said today he is "very much afraid" there will be a nation-wide steel strike.

The official, who asked that he not be named, said the government's top mobilization echelons, including the White House, are "determined" to hold the price line at all costs. That means the steel industry cannot get the price boosts it says it must have to grant a wage increase.

The disclosure came as the wage stabilization board promised to remain in session through the night if necessary to draft recommendations for settling the contract battle between the powerful C.I.O. United Steelworkers and the industry.

STRONGEST—In Seoul, Korea, Gen. James A. Van Fleet said today that his Eighth Army is stronger than ever before, but warned that the Communists might break through it in a spring offensive.

The four-star general said in a 60th birthday interview that the Reds could mass enough manpower at one point in the line to run over us if they want to pay the price.

However, he predicted that his Eighth Army forces would bounce back and hurl the enemy northward again "with the same punishment meted out to them as the last time they tried it."

Naval men may be preoccupied with action in Korean waters but they are not unmindful of the sick and crippled children of British Columbia.

Officials of the Queen Alexandra Solarium's Junior League reported today their current "Shower of Dimes" campaign is $28 closer to its objective as a result of contributions of personnel aboard H.M.C.S. Athabaskan, on duty in the Far East.

The donation was forwarded with a letter from Cmdr. D. G. King, R.C.N., Victoria, commanding officer of the Canadian destroyer. The letter stated the members of the ship's company "felt that they would like to contribute towards the success of the campaign."

There are 16 officers and 244 men serving on the Athabaskan, on her second tour of duty in Korean waters.

TAKE OVER AIRFIELDS
LONDON, March 19 (AP)—The Yugoslav newspaper Borba quotes two Romanian refugees as saying the Soviet air force has taken over several Romanian air fields including "the modern Constanta air field." The Romanians said jet propelled planes of the "MiG" and "Yak" types are arriving in increasing numbers.

4 Die in Wild U.S. Weather

By United Press

One of the worst blizzards of the winter halted rail and highway travel over the Sierra Nevada range today while rains lashed the Midwest in the wake of a series of tornadoes.

The Southern Pacific Railroad said it was forced to suspend temporarily freight and passenger service over Donner Summit in the Sierra Nevada Mountains and highway crews struggled against the mounting snows to reach an isolated resort area.

The storms caused four deaths in the far west.

A storm centre gathering strength in the Midwest Tuesday night unleashed tornadoes in the Mississippi Valley.

A twister ripped a quarter-mile-wide path through Farmington, Mo., injuring one woman and tearing the roofs off several houses.

Another tornado damaged 25 to 30 buildings in Kane, Ill., 85 miles to the north.

The southwest, meanwhile, made preparations for possible emergency flood conditions as record snows piled up in the New Mexico and southern Colorado mountains.

Blood Donors' Help Wanted

The growing need for blood donors in the fight against disease and accident was stressed by Forrest L. Shaw at a recent meeting of the Independent Order of Foresters, Court Victoria, No. 1004.

Shaw, a member of the Red Cross public relations committee, spoke on the work of the Blood Donor Service. He also pointed out that B.C. was the first province in Canada to institute a free transfusion service and Victoria the first city to operate one.

Members were informed at the meeting that the I.O.O.F. in Victoria will attend the blood clinic as a group, April 22.

Street By-Law Draft Proves Too Expensive

City Council's public works committee Tuesday turned down a draft condensation of the street by-law by Robert Dobie, traffic engineering assistant.

Designed as a simplification of Victoria traffic rules and regulations for the layman, the draft was to be put in booklet form.

Cost of $400 for 10,000 printed booklets was the reason given by committee for its action. Aid Robert Macmillan said it would be "a complete waste of money."

They agreed to approach the provincial motor vehicle branch with a suggestion they print and distribute the booklets.

Installation of new mercury vapor lights to improve lighting at Fiskard and Government will be recommended to council.

Traveling Court May Reach Outposts

Justice may become mobile in some of the far-flung sections of British Columbia.

Attorney-General Gordon Wismer said in the Legislature Tuesday consideration is being given to setting up a system of traveling courts. The plan would be aimed at achieving uniform administration of justice in scattered points of B.C.

C.C.F. Leader Harold Winch raised the subject during discussion of the attorney-general's departmental estimates. He felt a system of traveling courts would ensure fairer trials and uniform treatment.

Winch said he recalled the subject had been "under consideration" by the government for at least 12 years, but nothing had developed.

"I think there should be some action," he declared.

The proposal, Wismer replied, requires a lot of study before implementation.

One idea he had thought over would be to have young lawyers, with special training, conduct the traveling courts. The idea is good, he said.

The plan would obviate the necessity of appointing so many magistrates in thinly populated parts of the province. Its main objective would be uniform justice.

Under the present system there have been complaints that there are wide variations in sentences imposed for similar crimes. This matter was brought up on the floor of the House only recently.

Fire Insurance for N.A.T.O.

THE ISSUE OF FOREIGN POLICY raised by the C.C.F. in Canada is basically the same issue which has split the politics of all the nations of the North Atlantic alliance. It is simply whether the free world should go on with its costly rearmament or lie back and take it easy.

In Britain Mr. Bevan proposes to smash the rearmament plans launched by the Labor government of which he was once a member and now carried on by the Conservative government.

In France a series of distracted governments has struggled to maintain only a moderate rearmament against the opposition of the Communist party and other parties which are unwilling even to meet the plain facts of the nation's threatened bankruptcy.

In the United States the Truman government faces a determined drive in an election year to cut down the essential program of foreign aid.

And in Canada the C.C.F.—joining Mr. Bevan and repudiating Mr. Atlee—denounces the North Atlantic Treaty Organization for falling "completely under the military to the exclusion of social and economic considerations" and for being "influenced almost entirely by domestic and political considerations in the United States."

Mr. Bevan has finally attacked the world leadership of the United States outright. Mr. Coldwell does not go that far but he thinks that N.A.T.O. is trying to do too much too quickly and to do the wrong things.

Mr. Pearson replies that, far from doing too much in building its defenses, N.A.T.O. actually has reduced, at the Lisbon conference, the objectives which it had set for itself earlier. Its present defense plans, Mr. Pearson thinks, offer an absolute minimum of safety in Europe. And, it should be added, there is no positive assurance that even these reduced plans will be made good. They certainly will not be made good if the Beavans and Coldwells have their way.

As usual, Mr. St. Laurent has set forth the whole issue in simple language which anyone can understand: "As our hopes of keeping the peace rise as our sense of security grows, we in the free world are facing the greatest test of our understanding, our resolution and our patience. It is so easy to forget why we feel more secure and so easy to forget to pay the premiums on the insurance or even to ask ourselves whether we need it. I myself am convinced that if we are not to lose the security now coming within our grasp we must be ready to keep up the insurance, much as I hope we may never have the fire." There is the sovereign question. Having come thus far in defense, having established only the beginnings of strength, being still far from the point where it can bargain equally with Russia, will the free world now fire of its efforts and let Russia win the struggle for power, by default? That is precisely what Russia hopes and expects. As Mr. Pearson says the C.C.F.—however sincere it may be in opposing communism—is now playing "straight into the hands of Communist propaganda."

Air Chief Marshal Breadner

AIR CHIEF MARSHAL LLOYD S. Breadner, C.B., D.S.C., who died in a Boston hospital last week at the age of 58, was the second great R.C.A.F. leader to pass on within weeks. The other was Air Marshal Harold (Gus) Edwards, who died in Arizona at the age of 59. Both officers had been ordered to the United States for their health, and the fact that both died at comparatively early ages corroborates the opinions of their friends that they were, in truth, "casualties of war."

It is an ironic fact—but nonetheless a fact—that Canadians generally knew less about their top air leaders in the recent war than they did about the "big names" of the U.S. Air Force. Spaatz, Vandenberg, Collins; these were the names which were blazoned across North America in the years after Mr. Churchill's epic comment about so many owing so much to so few.

It should be pointed out, however, that Air Chief Marshal Breadner's record spanned virtually the entire history of wartime flying. In 1915 he paid about $60 per flying hour out of his own pocket, in order to equip himself for air battle. By 1917 he commanded a squadron of his own and won the Distinguished Service Cross (with the Royal Naval Air Service).

When the R.C.A.F. was founded in 1924, Breadner became O.C. of its station at Camp Borden. Between then and 1939 he rose to Air Commodore. In 1939, he was sent to London to discuss with the British Commonwealth Air Training plan.

As Chief of Air Staff, this became his chief oeuvre: the work which will remain as his monument. His was the task of building up this immense training plan. And build it up he did. By 1943, when he went overseas to direct the fighting force he had fashioned, the fame of his Canadian-trained pilots was worldwide. The growing might of his forces was a Canadian, by 1944 and 1945, comprising more than 30 per cent of the air crews based on Britain.

In post-war years, retired and "promoted to the highest rank ever accorded a Canadian airman, Air Chief Marshal Breadner turned his attention to the R.C.A.F. Association, which perpetuates the immortal spirit of "Per Ardua ad Astra." Its members will not soon forget the big, hearty Chief who was a "pilot's pilot" and as such won their affection and admiration. Canadians generally may salute him today as one of the outstanding architects of the Allied victory.

The Man for the Job

SINCE THE POST-WAR INFUX OF immigrants began, it has been customary to note, from time to time, that Canada is becoming richer through the entry of newcomers possessing specialized skills. That generality is quite true. Unfortunately, however, those skills can be put to best use only when they are recognized, and it is difficult to see, in a round figure on immigration, which individuals have particular qualifications.

The Montreal Chamber of Commerce, recognizing the problem, has started a feature in its official organ "Commerce-Montreal," listing immigrants and their qualifications. From the lists, prospective employers may pick individuals whom they believe capable of doing specific jobs.

A sample listing illustrates the arrangement:

"Czech, 45, speaks German, Czech, French, English and Arabic; experienced as accountant . . . Russian, married, childless, doctor of natural sciences, metallurgist . . . Frenchman, 28, 14 years' experience in baking and pastry-making . . . Roumanian, 34, doctor of medicine, biochemist with degree of bachelor of science and chemistry, worked 2 1/2 years at the Pasteur Institute in Paris . . ."

The Montreal Chamber of Commerce is performing a valuable service in helping employers to find the right man for the right job, and in helping new Canadians toward a fuller utilization of their skills.

Bad Business at the Border

THE BANNING OF U.S. TRUCKS ON Ontario highways between Buffalo and Detroit constitutes a serious breach of the Geneva trade agreements. The Ontario government's action appears to have originated solely in an attempt to stifle competition affecting Canadian trucking firms, and constitutes discrimination that has no place in the relations existing between the two countries.

Quite apart from the infringement of the federal trade undertaking, the province's action invites retaliation by incensed legislators in the neighboring states. In such a case, Canada would stand to lose much more than Ontario may gain. In many parts of the border country, from the Maritimes through the prairies to British Columbia, Canadian trucks use United States highways with convenience and profit.

The Ontario situation follows an unfortunate pattern that has recently harassed the good-neighborliness of the two countries. The U.S. embargo on Canadian dairy products (a quite separate measure from the understandable current meat embargo) and the all-provincial boycott of American wines and liquors—both in contravention of the Geneva agreements—are cases in point.

The Ontario ban is an embarrassment to Ottawa and a needless point of friction with our neighbors. It should be removed at once.

A Tree Grows in Oaxaca

IT WAS PERHAPS ON A DAY WHEN the vandals were pillaging the streets of Rome, in 455 A.D., that a little living seed fell on the ground in a part of the world that was later to be called Mexico.

It took root and grew, a dark-fronced cypress, sending its tentacles deep into the earth. Its branch tips sturdy into the sky. When it had reached the age of a good, mature Douglas fir, the Mohammedan era was just beginning.

At the time a fir would be starting into its decline, at, say, 300 years of age, the cypress was just getting started. At double the mature fir's age, the Normans were invading England (1066) and the cypress was still a comparative sapling.

So it grew, as century after century reeled off. Civilizations waxed and waned; kings reigned and died; wars came and went; a whole new hemisphere of the world was discovered and opened up; man's way of living underwent a revolution as machines increased; the tree grew on.

Today, in a little town in Oaxaca state in southern Mexico the people are asking the government to provide them with a well and a pump. Their Santa Maria Maria cypress, now reputed to be 1,500 years old, is dying of drought. One hundred and sixty feet high stands this aged veteran of the centuries, 52 feet in diameter.

Its soaring tip, its mighty green branches, hold a lesson for man. The petty affairs of the little creatures who creep about its roots—their struggles, their wars, their ambitions, their patches of earth won and lost—all are as nothing to this implacable plant.

There were plants before man; there likely will be plants long after man has disappeared from the face of the spinning globe. How rate the Hitlers, the Mussolinis, the Stalins in such company? What price human frenzy in terms of this relentless growth?

Chips Off The Old Brock

By DAVID BROCK

I HAVE A COUSIN-IN-LAW WHO IS extremely tidy, indoors and out. I suppose you all have a cousin-in-law like that. Some of you are proud of yours, and others are vaguely irritated by theirs.

I am quite neutral about the tidy habits of mine. After all, he doesn't try to tidy ME up . . . he knows when a thing is impossible. He has even stopped making delicate suggestions about my house, my garden, and my person. And it doesn't pain me in the slightest to watch him painting and sweeping and re-arranging his own place.

I sometimes wonder why he chops down so many trees in the interests of tidiness, and keeps moving so many plants about. I could have told him that peonies are far from restless creatures and sometimes actually hate travel.

AND when he got angry with his peach tree for not bearing, and cut it tidily down, I was pretty sure that his previous tidiness and something to do with that year's stubborn revolt. After all, it's on this year's new wood that next year's fruit forms, and if you keep tidying the new wood away with your snippers, your lack of peaches is going to be maddening. Unless you hate peaches. I am beginning to hate peaches myself. I used to love them, but I am sick of them now. I have had so many with worms, ants, and birds, then I grow as bitter as any peach-stone.

WELL, this admirably tidy man was disposing of all the household rubbish he could find, one day recently, and if a man has half an eye for rubbish he can find it anywhere. He had fires going in the furnace and in the garden and in every fireplace, and heaven knows what went into them. I dare say he burnt the last few books his wife borrowed from me; that's what must happen to them, for they are never there when I start snooping round that house for them. Running short of further rubbish, he grabbed a big bag of mothballs and popped it into the furnace.

I think mothballs are made of naphthalene or some such product. At any rate, they burn with fierce enthusiasm, so it wasn't long before the flue got red hot. Nobody noticed that, at first, but his wife was in the kitchen when the kitchen wall burst into flames, and that is the sort of thing that catches a tidy person's eye right away.

AFTER a splendid effort, the firemen saved the house. Before going back to their checker game, they delivered an instructive lecture on the main disadvantage of heating the house with mothballs. Apart from being useful as crude marbles, they said, mothballs are good for only annoying insects with, except possibly fireflies, who might ignite them, I suppose. But these firemen failed to point out the chief moral to be derived from this exciting little conflagration. Surely every householder should take warning, and not be quite so darned tidy in future.

FIREMEN and fire marshals and fire wardens and fire underwriters are always telling us to get our act together and clean up, because of what they call a hazard, a fancy word for a risk. But since insurance men are fond of a sporting bet (it is their whole profession), and since firemen are often engaged in games of chance other than checkers, perhaps they'd like to accept a little wager. I'll bet that the majority of the houses started by the tidy man by the untidy man.

Every chimney fire this side of the North Pole is started by women (and even men) who want to use their fireplaces as incinerators. Twice (once from each side) my house has been menaced by gardeners who got so tidy they set fire to their gardens and covered my dry roof with showers of sparks.

ONE day last month I was in a lane behind a suburban movie-house. On a little open space behind that theatre there was a man tidily burning dozens of big cardboard cartons (thereby making the price of paper). You know how a burning carton loves to fly up into the sky for one last fling. A slight breeze carried the burning bits just clear of the old frame firetrap of a theatre, but the man had no guarantee that the wind would stay constant forever.

It was a Saturday afternoon, and the theatre was crammed solid with howling children, yelling in a halfwitted manner at the pictures of quarterwitted cowhands. Among these maniacs was my own son. I was busybody enough to phone the police and complain about that tidy man. Let him burn down theatres on weekday mornings, not Saturday afternoons. I suppose he thought the cops and me too fussy . . . too tidy-minded, so to speak.

BATTER UP I was telling a pal that beer is quite good in fritter-batter (which it is). But he said he'd frittered enough beer away already.

SIGNING OFF "LOOK, dear, if I don't phone you back, it means I'm not coming with you. Or no . . . it means I AM coming. No, it better mean I'm not coming. Don't forget."

Proud Mother Saturday Night

MRS. E. A. PEARSON has had many proud moments but none afforded greater maternal satisfaction than to sit in Convocation Hall as her distinguished son was installed as Chancellor of Victoria University. The Pearson family has long been closely associated with Victoria and Lester Bowles Pearson is the second chancellor the family has provided.

For any mother the occasion would have been a triumph. But the scene at Convocation Hall was more than the installation of a chancellor. Speakers representative of all Canadian universities made it very plain to a warmly appreciative audience how important a national and world figure her 55-year-old son has become.

Arthur Hays Sulzberger recently in the same auditorium described Lester Pearson as the world's most relaxed diplomat. His mother, at 83, has the same pleasant twinkling eyes, the same easy manner and the same strong chin that diplomats the world over have noted in Pearson.

Heartbreak Ridge

Why Take Rocky Point?

(A Brief to the Natural History Society of Victoria)

TEN months ago it was learned that one of the most beautiful and unique areas of Vancouver Island was to be alienated from the public for the express purpose of establishing a naval arsenal.

Consisting of over 3,000 acres, this magnificent peninsula known as Rocky Point comprising the most southerly extent of Canadian soil on the Pacific Coast, is girded by approximately 12 miles of the most majestic ocean frontage to be found on the North American Continent. Embellished with innumerable coves, beaches and islands the entire panorama becomes almost indescribable against the backdrop of the Olympics to the south, the Sooks Hills to the north, Mt. Baker to the east and the open Pacific to the west.

Within this breath-taking perimeter lie open fields and meadows with the charm of an English countryside; two rugged mountains bearing the stern aspect of the Scottish Highlands; and between them large tracts of virgin timber as truly native as our own Vancouver Island.

NATURAL ARTISTRY

To think of all this natural artistry, this priceless domain situated within an hour's drive of our provincial capital; to think of this rare masterpiece of creation so close to a community of people with a growth scarcely paralleled in modern times; to think of the unbounded possibilities it affords to artist and author, laborer and layman, adult and child, for inspiration, for rejuvenation, for education; to think of all this ruthlessly swept away from our people and our posterity; to think of the desecration here to be perpetrated; all of this enrages the senses and demands our action.

Whatever the specific purpose for which it was alienated by the federal government, be it magazine, airfield or anchorage; other sites less useful, less valuable to the public are available and within almost equal proximity to present naval installations.

In fact from the standpoint of defense requirements and in the face of modern technological developments in atomic warfare it would appear not only absurd but an open invitation to disaster to concentrate new installations so closely adjacent to existing ones, particularly in such a conspicuous and vulnerable position as that selected for the purpose.

DESIRABLE AREA Now that this very large and desirable area has been acquired by the federal government it is hereby suggested that since no further benefits can accrue therefrom in the form of taxation for the province, that this entire property be declared and developed as a national park and wildlife sanctuary, for the everlasting benefit and enjoyment of the people. A truly and unwieldy inviolate sanctuary.

Especially does this apply since there is at present no existing national park on Vancouver Island, which in itself is a lamentable fact.

Because of the nature, location, topography and other pertinent attributes of this peninsula its potentialities for this purpose are unmatched in this region. Here could be developed a shore-line drive, a part of which already exists, that would rival the "17 Mile Drive" which made Camel a mecca for artists the world over.

The two mountains would afford look-out points with views to equal anything in the Pacific Northwest. The varied coastline from tide flat to rock bluff affords a natural habitat for innumerable forms of marine life that could be studied in their normal environment. The diversity of topography with its numerous types of natural vegetation provides sanctuary to at least one hundred different species of land and shore birds, many of which not only use this as a stop-over on their migratory flights, but also find it sufficiently attractive to winter here.

By judicious development of the existing swamps, ponds and streams a bird sanctuary could be established that would parallel the now famous Jack Miner sanctuary at Point Pelee in Ontario.

The fact that a portion of this peninsula constitutes one of the few locations in Canada with the oak-madrone association in its original form deserves very special attention. Combined with this is a grassland ecology based on an open prairie type of soil rarely found on the Pacific coast. This particular section would constitute an ideal range for herbivorous mammals such as elk, deer and other species suited to the region.

INSULAR NATURE

Because of its almost insular nature the problems of maintaining a park on the point would be reduced to an absolute minimum. This applies not only to the encroachment of industrial and residential areas, but also from the standpoint of supervision, and control of visitors from without and wildlife within.

The development of a national park would greatly enhance the prestige of Vancouver Island, particularly Victoria and its environs as a holiday centre, providing a great attraction to our many visitors.

Other features of interest are the remains from old Indian camp grounds to be found in this vicinity, which, because of its excellent salmon fishing and clam digging was ever a favorite haunt for the native tribes.

Only a few of the possibilities envisaged have thus been described in an attempt to convey something of the tremendous potential for good which is within our grasp, and which, if nurtured would prove an ever-increasing asset not only to ourselves but also to that vast multitude of posterity who in generations to follow will clamor for a retreat from the heavily populated communities which are an inevitable part of this country's future development.

To ourselves, and to them we owe a pledge to preserve unspoiled this masterpiece of nature.—W. P. K.

Under Our Roof

By JOHN RHODES STURDY

EVERY time St. Patrick's Day comes around I think of Russell. I don't remember Russell's first name and I have no idea what has happened to him since the war, but each spring when the radio starts to play "Irish tunes and Little Auggie puts on his green tie (Little Auggie, of course, was born in Sicily, but who cares on the 17th of Ireland) I think of the Emerald Isle and I think of Russell.

Sturdy

I found Russell in a pub on Foyle Street in the city of Londonderry during the war. He was all alone, poking at a dead fire with a swigger stick and waiting for the bar to open, and I was struck immediately by his appearance. He was wearing a flying officer's uniform of the R.A.F., except that his trousers were thrust into a pair of highly-polished cavalry boots.

While we sat around waiting, Russell told me that he had been in South Africa when war was declared and immediately set sail for England.

"My family had shipped me out to Africa," he explained, "but, after all, in a time of national emergency, they really had to forgive and forget, so to speak." In London, Russell went immediately to the War Office and in a burst of patriotism, announced: "Here I am. Take me."

Well, the army took him all right and made him a private in a cavalry regiment, and for three years Russell saw no action of any kind. He didn't even get a horse. That piqued him more than anything. He was a second lieutenant by this time and had bought himself a magnificent pair of riding boots, but this cavalry regiment happened to be mechanized.

"I felt I would never get to ride a horse," he explained, "so I transferred to the air force. I still wear the boots, though, as you can see. They cost such a frightful amount of money, you know."

SEEMED LOGICAL

Well, that seemed logical, and so we sat there admiring Russell's boots, and the bar still failed to open so I took him back to the ship with me. He liked the ship and he was happy to be a guest.

The next day he sent a signal asking me to come over to his mess at the airfield so he could reciprocate the hospitality. I must say that he did it in very fine style and it was much later when I made a remark that our ship was in port for a week with engine trouble and I had been trying to get over to London on leave.

There were several air force types sitting with us, and as soon as I made this remark, Russell looked at me in astonishment and said: "My dear chap, why didn't you mention it before? We'll all go over to London and have a drink. What say, men?"

It was the 17th of March.

Well, it was quite an uneventful flight—that is, until the anti-aircraft batteries started to open up on us. The air was filled with flak and at this point I regretted ever having mentioned London.

But we landed safely, and I was surprised—and somewhat shocked—to discover that we were back where we had started, in Londonderry.

There were a lot of brass hats on hand to meet us and they did not look very cordial as they took Russell away with them. A young pilot officer grabbed me and took me back to the mess and gave me something to calm my nerves.

"It was an unauthorized flight, I suppose," I said. "What will happen to Russell?"

"Oh, he'll get out of it," my companion said. "He always does. Don't worry about Russell. How are you feeling?"

"A little better," I said. "You know, they should never have tried to take me to London. I knew something was wrong as soon as the batteries opened fire."

The young pilot officer looked at me in some surprise.

"London?" he echoed. "But, look here, old boy. You weren't over London. You were over Hamburg."

"I'll never forget the 17th of March. I'll never forget Russell."

Tobin

"One ray of hope," said the Elevator Man, "is the fact that the modern city dweller subjects himself as little as possible to this bad influence. You don't find youngsters these days endangering their careers by hanging around where they may become delinquents. They're safely out and away to the movies, the corner drug store, the playgrounds and the club's shack on the vacant lot. Mama doesn't risk her health and her life by staying in a place where the accident rate is so high. Naturally she takes refuge at the bridge club, the matinee and other safety shelters. And is Dad going to risk accident and maybe death in a fire trap such as the modern home, or run the chance of breaking up his family? Not a chance. To the club, the golf course and the old fishing spot, he flees for safety's sake. Going down!"

"Fortunately," said the Elevator Man, "this greatly diminishes the hideous threat which faces mankind today. With reasonable care a person need spend no more than his sleeping hours in the danger area. And in time we may succeed in eliminating the whole treacherous business."

Canadian Artillery Guns Catch Chinese Reds in Withering Fire

By BILL BOSS

WITH THE CANADIANS IN KOREA, March 11 (Delayed by Censor) (CP)—Guns of the Royal Canadian Horse Artillery caught 30 Chinese Communists out in the open today.

Not many lived to tell about it. The 2nd Regiment's concentrations of variable-time-fuse shells accounted for most of them. They were originally spotted by regimental observation officers during a tour of his front by Brigade Commander Brig. John M. Rockingham, accompanied by Lt.-Col. Geoff Brooks of Shilo, Man., commander of the 2nd R.C.H.A.

The Canadians moved into their new positions in the west sector only yesterday, after a 51-day period in reserve-training, limbering up, resting a little and playing hockey.

The brigade was pulled out of the line last Jan. 19 after the longest continuous period in contact with the enemy in Canadian military history—138 days.

Rockingham put his brigade through an intensive period of brush-up training during the early period in reserve, and set the men to climbing hills again after months in bunkers.

MORALE BOOSTER
The hockey equipment sent to Korea proved the most worthwhile morale booster army headquarters had dispatched from Canada.

With the equipment for six teams, three rinks were set up on the Imjin River. Each rink saw more than 50 games. The brigade played through an inter-company schedule so that as many as possible could use the gear, and later battalion teams were picked for the brigade championship—ultimately won by the 1st Battalion Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry. The

Anscomb Hits Budget

The provincial treasury board failed to reduce British Columbia's provisional budget very much after the Coalition break-up, Opposition Leader Herbert Anscomb said in the Legislature Tuesday night.

"There was mighty little cut off that budget after I left," Anscomb said.

Anscomb made the statement during consideration of Education Minister W. T. Straith's departmental estimates. When Straith rose to say a considerable amount had been slashed from original estimates presented to the treasury board, the Opposition Leader interjected:

"Be careful now, or I might tell the size of the budget when I left."

C.C.F. Leader Harold Winch suggested it would be "very interesting" to know this, and Anscomb came back:

"You'd love to know, wouldn't you?"

"See, it's still really a Coalition," said Winch.

Anscomb felt the treasury board didn't reduce the original estimates nearly enough. When he was in there, he recalled, "millions" used to be slashed from original departmental estimates.

Inspiration of Orchestra Lacking But Little Company's Art Charms

By AUDREY ST. D. JOHNSON

It has now been definitely established. Victoria's favorite concert art is the dance! The fact that Famous Artists had a complete sell-out Tuesday night, for prima ballerina Marina Svetlova, proves it.

So, with the Royal Theatre closely packed from top to bottom with a potentially enthusiastic audience, some really excellent dancing and a generous program, what could be lacking?

Something, evidently, for the evening just fell short of sending one on one's way in the expected aurelian glow of exhilaration.

I don't think it was altogether the lack of an orchestra, although a lone piano is a poor substitute for even a small orchestra on such an occasion; it was probably that factor, combined with the unrelieved monotony of black "eye" curtains and not too inspired costumes; it takes very great artistry indeed to bewitch the audience under such circumstances.

Marina Svetlova is an airy, extremely well-disciplined dancer with a clear, classic style and a charming face and figure. On points she was all delicate, fine-drawn precision. The Swan Lake, Pas de Deux, Sleeping and Harlequin and Columbine, were lovely, rising here and there to brilliance.

In the interpretive work, such as the portrayal of the Faustian Marguerite, I was aware of a certain creative weakness; the emotional values were rather superficial. The two spritely "Flirtation" numbers, on the other hand, were quite charming.

CAPABLE PARTNER

Robert Calder, who had some of his early training with Dorothy Wilson, a well-known Victoria and Vancouver teacher, was a capable partner for the ballerina, while not producing anything particularly glistening in the solo line.

The only other dancing member of the small company was Dolores Da Silva, who presented five Spanish dances; the last, a complex, brilliant and characterful Jota, a folk dance from the province of Navarra, being almost worth the price of admission on its own.

The petite Da Silva is very young—not much more than 20, it seems—but her lively face, puckish personality, rhythmically chattering feet and smart costumes should soon make her a star in her own right.

Pianist Theodor Haig occupied two solo spots on the program in addition to his accompanist duties. He proved to be a powerful and showy executant but in his Chopin group, at least, fell into the obvious trap of sentimentalism.

Gifted Victorian Pianist-Composer To Give Recital

Mrs. Olive Stuart, noted Victoria pianist and composer, will give a piano recital in the Mural Room of the Y.M.C.A., Friday at 8.

She will play two of her own compositions, as well as Chopin, Tchaikowski, Donizetti and Liszt selections. Mrs. Stuart's own compositions will include a sonata and a suite. The sonata, "In a Child's Day," is in four parts, "Good Morning," "Bit of Nonsense," "Tell a Story" and "Lullaby."

Saskatchewan Girl Praised By London Theatre Critics

LONDON, March 19 (CP). — British theatre critics agreed today that "The Same Sky," a play about a mixed marriage with Canadian actress Frances Hyland in the leading role, fully deserved its transfer to the West End.

The Times called Miss Hyland's performance "excellent" and the Daily Mail and Daily Herald also praised her portrayal of the Jewish girl in love with a Gentile soldier.

Miss Hyland, 24, is a native of Shaunavon, Sask., who grew up in Regina. She made her West End debut in June, 1950, as Stella in the London production of "A Streetcar Named Desire," making the jump from drama school into a leading West End role. As a girl in Regina Miss Hyland dreamed of stardom on the stage after reading John Gielgud's biography, "Early Stages." Her childhood dream came true recently when she played with Gielgud in Shakespeare's "A Winter's Tale."

Canucks Protect Their Net Minder

If the Victoria Cougars never see Nick Pidsodny again, it'll be too soon. The hook-nosed Vancouver Canucks' goalkeeper continued his one-man campaign against the Cougars Tuesday night, being the chief ingredient in Canucks' 3-2 win that all but eliminated Victoria from playoff contention. Here Pidsodny flops on a shot from Cougar's Reg Abbott while his defensemen form a protective screen around him. Canucks are, left to right, Orval Lavell, Hugh Currie and Gary Gordon. At right, Cougar's Bob Frampton awaits developments which didn't develop.

Bruins in Playoffs; Kraut Line Sparkles

IT'S MY VIEW

By BILL WALKER, Sports Editor

This was the first (annual?) press-radio dinner through the courtesy of the Shamrock Lacrosse Club. The bun feed was probably originated for various reasons, but the ulterior and perhaps sinister, motive lurking behind the chicken was easily recognizable.

The Shamrocks made it plain that they wish the words "Mann Cup" stricken from every sportswriter's and radio-caster's vocabulary with no exceptions.

The ban is to take effect in mid-May with the commencement of the Inter-city Lacrosse League season and run until sometime in September. It is believed by that time travel arrangements will have been completed with Trans-Canada Air Lines for 15 members of the team, plus executive and, if they abide by the edict, sportswriters, for a trip to Toronto where this year's championship series will be played.

Now we've said it, probably for the last time this summer. In future the Mann Cup will be referred to as the trophy held by Peterborough. And on that theme, there's a small score the league would like to settle with the Timbermen. Given the opportunity, they would like to shove the words of ex-Peterborough coach Don Crowe back from whence they came. Crowe, it will be recalled, didn't spare the adjectives in minimizing the talents of the Rocks following last year's exhibition game here.

However, the fact that the Shamrocks prefer to win the league before they pack their trunks for Toronto will undoubtedly not be received in other coast centres with the assurance that went with a statement on an occasion when quotable quotes were at a premium, every one having been well briefed.

Potentially a Great, High-Scoring Club

Team manager Ralph Baker, attempting to disguise his true feelings behind a crab cocktail, mumbled something along the lines of "I believe that in this year's team we have potentially the highest scoring team in Canadian lacrosse."

Four (or was it five) cocktails later, Baker explained what others had been thinking: "And given average goalkeeping (a problem since Bill Anderson retired, or has he?) should be stronger than last year."

In respect to the goal position, it's up for the taking, with Al Thompson, Buzz Long and the forgotten man, Jim Hetherington, the trio from this year's custodian will be chosen. . . . And if Anderson wants his old job back he'll start on even terms with this threesome.

Several (crab) cocktails later, it was also decided (in some quarters) that Ted Reynolds once was almost as good a hockey player as Gordie Howe. The latter plays for Detroit, leads the National Hockey League in scoring, is regarded as one of the greatest players of all time. . . . Reynolds is best known for the expression "They all poke at it."

The story as we snatched pieces of it went something like this:

Ted Has Figures to Back Him Up

Shamrocks' secretary Jack Bacon had been discussing the merits of Mickey McKay, who Lester Patrick rates as the greatest hockey player of all time. Reynolds disagreed and cast his vote for Howe. His reason was purely personal. For a few years ago when Howe was a junior, a contest took place somewhere in the province's interior between two junior teams. Howe was on one team, Reynolds the other.

Howe played 60 minutes in that game, according to Reynolds, and scored eight goals in the 10-5 victory.

Reynolds, he himself divulged without undue pressure, played only 20 minutes and scored six goals.

But back to lacrosse. . . . Truck McDonald of Adanac fame issued a note of warning to the Shamrocks last week and it's one that shouldn't go unheeded. Truck's advice is: "Don't let the Rocks kill the goose that's laying the Golden Egg." In other phraseology, he implores the Shamrocks not to get too almighty powerful as the league might collapse from the weight. "The Shamrocks did it years ago," he pointed out, "and now we're virtually packing the club."

WILLIE HOPPE DEFEATED; LOSES TOURNAMENT LEAD

SAN FRANCISCO, March 19 (AP)—Joe Procita, a comparative unknown, toppled 11-time champion Willie Hoppe from the world three-cushion billiard tournament lead Tuesday night.

Procita dealt the white-haired perennial champ his second loss in two nights. The score was 50-41 in 48 innings.

The defeat put Japanese ace Kinrey Matsuyama at the top of the single-round robin meet with a 5-1 won-lost record. It dumped Hoppe into a 5-2 second-place tie with Jay Bozeman, Vallejo, Calif.

Hoppe and Matsuyama meet Saturday night in the final tournament game.

Bozeman, playing his first tournament in six years, defeated Mexico's champion Joe Chamaco 50-33 in 56 innings.

Famous Unit Figures in Four Goals

Tuesday night was the biggest hockey night in Boston in years.

The Bruins not only downed Chicago Black Hawks, 4-0, to clinch a berth in the 1952 Stanley Cup playoffs, but veteran team-captain Milt Schmidt scored his 200th National Hockey League goal, while Bobby Bauer goal in uniform after five years of retirement for a Schmidt-Dumart-Bauer appreciation night—notched one of his own.

The Boston victory hoisted the club safely into permanent possession of fourth place in the six-team league, and secured any hope the fifth-place New York Rangers had of gaining a spot in the post-season eliminations.

The win increased Boston's margin over the New Yorkers to seven points and the Rangers have only three games to play.

FANS RETURN, TOO

A crowd of 12,658 fans—second largest in Boston this season—turned out to view the proceedings. They watched career ceremonies when the famous trio who burned up the NHL from 1936 to 1947 were presented with numerous gifts and then saw their share in all four of the Bruins' goals.

Schmidt banged in the game's second goal—his 200th in NHL play—and assisted on all three of the others. Bauer notched the third marker and helped with Schmidt's while Dumart also gave Schmidt a helping hand on his tally.

Ed Kryzanowski netted Boston's first goal and rookie Real Chevrefils clicked for the fourth Bruin marker. The shutout was Sugar Jim Henry's seventh of the season and the game, Boston's sixth straight.

OTHER "200" MEN

In tallying his 200th goal on an eight-foot backhand that had goalie Harry Lumley fooled all the way, Schmidt became the fifth active NHL player to reach the mark. The others are Dumart, Maurice Richard of Montreal, Max Bentley of Toronto and Bill Mosienko of Chicago.

CLAIMS SUIT REVERSAL OF RULING BY SUPREME COURT

CHICAGO, March 19 (AP).—A lawyer who is secretary of the International Boxing Club contended Tuesday that the United States government's suit against the I.B.C. was an effort to wipe out a 30-year precedent holding sports exempt from the Sherman anti-trust law.

Truman Gibson, I.B.C. secretary, said the suit filed in New York Monday charging the I.B.C. with conspiracy to monopolize boxing was a turn-about from a ruling by Supreme Court Justice Holmes.

Gibson said Holmes held that sports promotion was a form of entertainment and was not included in the nature of business and commercial monopolies as affected by the Sherman anti-trust law.

As for controlling championship bouts, as cited in the suit, Gibson said the I.B.C. conducted only from 5 to 8 per cent of the country's title fights during the fiscal year.

LEAD HOOP FINAL

Eilers Spank Prince Rupert

VANCOUVER, March 19 (CP).—Vancouver Eilers overpowered Prince Rupert Challengers 75-44 in the first game of a best-of-three series for the British Columbia senior "A" men's basketball championship, Tuesday night.

Second game will be played tonight.

The lopsided win came as revenge for Eilers, defeated two games to one in an exhibition series in Prince Rupert last year.

The Vancouver squad was ahead all the way, scoring the first 14 points without a reply. Nine of the points came from diminutive guard Normie Watt who sparked Eilers throughout the game with 21 points.

Facing a 23-4 deficit at quarter time Prince Rupert had little chance to catch the red-hot Eilers.

Line-ups follow:

Prince Rupert—Davis 8, Platen 3, Olsen 2, Scherk 13, Spring 11, Webster 3, Hokestad 1, Matthews 3, Carlson, Morgan—44.

Vancouver—Moses 8, Lizee 5, Forsyth 10, Watt 21, Mitchell 10, Munro 13, Witherspoon 7, Lawn 1—75.

MEETING THURSDAY

Minor Baseball Revival Seen

There is a possibility that the Victoria Minor Baseball Association and the Victoria Senior Amateur Baseball League may amalgamate, if a recent proposal is followed.

At the minor association's annual organizational meeting, Sunday, Gar Taylor of the senior league made the suggestion and promised the full support of the senior body for the promotion of minor baseball.

It was further suggested that the minor body send a delegate to the next meeting of the senior league Thursday night at the Eagles Hall.

Ed Farey of the Tyee Booster Club stated that his organization is interested in fostering minor baseball and that they would endorse an amalgamation, feeling that the joint efforts of the two leagues would cause a revival in amateur ball in 1952.

FOUR-TEAM LEAGUE

The senior league proposes to organize at least four teams to play in a city-league and to enter two clubs in the Island League. Majority of the senior games would be played at Athletic Park when the Tyees are on the road.

FARMERS MAY TALK ON SCHOOL COSTS

Education Minister Pledged to Consider Agriculture Delegate on Study Committee

An agriculture department representative may sit on the special government committee studying education costs.

Increase in Canada Farms Led by B.C.

OTTAWA, March 19 (CP)—British Columbia alone among Canada's provinces had more farms in 1951 than in 1941, the Bureau of Statistics reported Tuesday.

The bureau, making public the results of a 1951 census, said the number of farms in Canada dropped by 58,000 to 677,500. Although farms grew fewer, however, their size grew larger. Acreage climbed from 173,566,000 to 174,064,000.

In the over-all total farm area, increases in the Prairies and British Columbia outweighed narrowly decreases in all the eastern provinces.

In acreage, decreases in the Maritimes, Quebec and Ontario ranged between 5.3 per cent in Prince Edward Island and almost 17 per cent in New Brunswick, totaling 3,994,000 acres in those five provinces.

The Prairies showed gains, from 2.7 to 5 per cent and totaling 3,723,000 acres. B.C.'s farm area rose by 666,000 or about 17 per cent.

In individual farm totals, the B.C. number was 21 per cent greater last year than in 1941. Among other provinces, there were decreases in numbers ranging from 3.7 per cent for Manitoba to 15.7 per cent for Nova Scotia.

Legislative Vote Blocks Vancouver Bill Amendments

By a 31-13 vote, the Legislature Tuesday deferred action on amendments to the Vancouver city charter.

In private bills committee earlier in the day, it was decided by a 6-5 vote to recommend deferment to the House because only non-contentious matters were supposed to be discussed at the current session.

C.C.F. Leader Harold Winch delivered a scathing attack on the government for its handling of the issue, but he received no reply from the government side of the House.

Winch wanted to know who in the government issued instructions that private bills should not be submitted. It was "amazing," he said, nobody seemed to know. "Vancouver is being penalized because of the stupidity and incompetence of this government," declared Winch.

Education Minister W. T. Straith gave an undertaking to consider this move Tuesday in the revived House debate on allocation of the burden of school costs.

The debate produced few new arguments. Alex Hope (P.C., Delta), said education taxes should be based on the ability to pay. If the landowners aren't relieved of the burden soon, he predicted, they will be ruined.

Maurice Finnerty (Gov't, Similkameen), said a completely independent group should study the problem. He suggested a Royal Commission.

Winch disagreed, and suggested formation of a permanent advisory and consultative board to act on provincial/municipal matters. Saskatchewan, he said, is adopting that plan.

STRAIGHT TALK
"And it's time to do some straight talking to the municipalities. They get a good deal. They should be told they, too, have responsibilities," said Winch.

He felt, however, the problem will never really be solved until the province accepts 100 per cent responsibility for education costs.

Randolph Harding (C.C.F., Kaslo-Slocan), urged federal aid for school costs. The need, he added, is a uniform Canadian standard of education.

UNIVERSITY HOSPITAL

Capt. Proudfoot expressed the hope that a 250-bed hospital would be started soon on the grounds of the University of British Columbia. Provision, he added, should be made to allow enlargement to 500 beds when possible.

Straith said it is planned eventually to have a hospital there, but at present the Vancouver General Hospital is providing excellent training.

Capt. Proudfoot stressed the importance of a "closed hospital" for research and diagnostic purposes, difficult treatment and surgery.

MODERN CHILDREN DEFENDED

Schools' Curriculum Fills the Bill—Straith

The oft-repeated argument that "modern day children are going to the dogs" doesn't impress Education Minister W. T. Straith.

"I don't subscribe to that contention," Straith said in the Legislature, Tuesday. "Why, people were saying that when I was a boy, and I guess they'll continue to say it."

The subject came up during Straith's departmental estimates when C.C.F. Leader Harold Winch said the current curriculum needs revision.

"Too many children these days can't write, spell or do arithmetic like the children of a few years ago," said Winch. "There is a growing feeling that the curriculum places insufficient emphasis on the three R's."

He said the extra provisions in the curriculum are all to the good, but he appealed to the education department not to ignore the basic phases.

The department is not neglecting the three R's, replied Straith. Some people, he explained, just don't have the ability to do certain things.

"I was terrible at mathematics in school," he said. "When I went to university higher mathematics floored me. I just squeezed through."

He thought the present curriculum satisfactory—in fact, second to none.

B.C., he continued, is giving better education to more people than ever before. He said 60 per cent of B.C. students complete grade 11, compared to the national average of only 27 per cent.

Capt. D. J. Proudfoot (Govt., Victoria), who said he has made a study of the situation, explained that B.C. emphasizes the basic phases of education more than any other country, except Scotland.

FOUNDATION HERD

KINGSVILLE, Tex., March 19 (AP)—The King Ranch of Texas and a group of Australian graziers have formed a company to import a foundation herd of purebred Santa Gertrudis cattle to Australia, the King Ranch announced today. This is the first joint Australian-American venture to establish a large foundation herd of a new breed of cattle.

Warm Weather Helps National Job Increase

OTTAWA, March 19 (CP)—With warmer weather turning up new jobs, the labor department reported Tuesday the month-long increase in seasonal winter unemployment has come almost to a stop.

For the fortnight up to Feb. 28, the department's figures showed, the winter increase in the roll of cold-weather jobless was only 2,200.

Those looking for work at Feb. 28—which may turn out to be the peak unemployment point for winter—numbered 370,900. This compared with 368,700 two weeks earlier and with 296,700 a year earlier.

The figure stayed under the 1950 post-war unemployment peak of about 400,000. While the labor department made no predictions, the outward signs were that the 1950 figure would not be passed.

Regionally, unemployment was heaviest in Quebec, where 115,000 had registered for work. There, winter bush work was ending, and the textile industry was depressed.

Ratepayers of Cowichan To Vote on New School

DUNCAN, March 19—North Cowichan Council disapproved of extraordinary estimates of $94,279 of Cowichan School District No. 65 Monday and ordered preparation of a by-law for a new rural school to go before ratepayers. Ordinary estimates for 1952 of both Cowichan District 65 and Ladysmith School District 67 were approved.

There were no extraordinary estimates presented by the Ladysmith board, which includes Chemainus area of the municipality. Council favored spreading the cost of new District 65 schools over a period of years rather than raising needed municipal apportionments of current income.

Rural representatives of District 65 recently approved the special estimates, although City of Duncan turned them down.

It was reported by Clerk Maj. Gen. C. A. P. Murison that North Cowichan school costs had risen from $53,000 in 1948 to $174,000 in 1952.

ARMY SHIP NEEDED 'CHANGE'

NEW YORK, March 19 (AP)—A U.S. army tug delivered an emergency shipment of disposable diapers at sea yesterday. A few miles out from New York, it caught a navy transport bound for Bremerhaven with families of servicemen and paratroopers seven cases of diapers in answer to a request. "More babies sailed than we had expected," said the military sea transport service.

City May Escape Pay Conciliation

Employees Reject Council Proposal to Trim Demand

By AILEEN CAMPBELL

Conciliation proceedings on wage requests by 420 civic employees may yet be avoided.

City Council was scheduled to meet as a committee of the whole council late this afternoon to hear rejection of their wage proposal by the employees.

Both inside and outside staffs met Tuesday night and advised City Manager Cecil Wyatt by letter they could not accept the city's proposal. It is learned.

They said, owing to the April 15 deadline for completion of wage negotiations, they would have to apply for services of a conciliation officer, but added they would be quite willing to hear from the council again if it wished to reconsider.

Wyatt was to read letters to the council from both the City Hall Employees' Association and the Civic Employees' Protective Association.

REDUCTION SOUGHT
Council, on a motion from Ald. Robert Macmillan, voted 5-4 on Tuesday morning to ask the unions to consider a 25 per cent reduction in the wage increases recommended by the manager.

The manager and the unions have been negotiating on wages since last November.

Wyatt's recommendations to council of an 11 1/2 per cent boost for the inside staff and 15 1/2 cents an hour for the outside were the result.

It is understood in their letter rejecting the council's proposed cut, the unions said they could not consider anything less than the manager's recommendations.

REQUEST AMENDED
While original demands were not given out, their later requests, following first negotiation meetings, amounted to 12 1/2 per cent for the inside and 15 1/2 cents an hour for the outside.

Wyatt asked council for favorable consideration of his recommendations. He said the increases were reasonable and in line with increased cost of living.

His said percentage increase in cost-of-living index in 1951 was 11.69 and for food alone, 13.94.

Total cost of the increase to the city has been estimated roughly at $125,000.

HOSPITAL WING BLESSING WITNESSED BY NOTABLES

Blessing of the new five-story administration wing at St. Joseph's Hospital was asked this afternoon by Most Rev. James M. Hill, Catholic bishop of Victoria.

Bishop Hill conducted the benediction before a distinguished group of church, medical, government and civic dignitaries at 2:30.

At the conclusion of the impressive ceremony, he cut a ribbon across the new main door with scissors presented by tiny Jill Smith, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Vincent Smith, and then unlocked the door with a key presented by Henry Whitaker, architect for the $750,000 wing.

PREJUDICE DESIGN, COUNSEL PROTESTS

Dawe Calls Police Witnesses Evasive In Plea to Marlow Manslaughter Jury

Defense counsel Arthur Dawe persisted in Assize Court today that Crown evidence presented in the manslaughter trial of Leslie Marlow, 1303 Yates, was designed to prejudice the case of the defendant.

"Anything to prejudice the accused, they have done," Dawe declared. He complained bitterly of not getting proper answers from Crown witnesses in cross-examination.

"You gentlemen have seen me trying to get answers from them," he told the jury in his final address. "They evade, equivocate—do anything not to answer the questions I ask."

"It is amazing how, when confronted with a piece of evidence in favor of the accused, the witnesses would quibble. This case had to be made to look as bad as possible," Dawe submitted.

HOSPITAL QUESTIONING
The defense counsel was particularly critical of Saanich police witnesses, and objected that Constable David Shepherd had questioned his client in hospital just as soon as he regained consciousness.

"What do you think of that?" Dawe demanded of the jury. "Do you want it to be in this country that if you should get into an accident sitting like a vulture on the end of your bed when you wake up will be a policeman ready to fire questions? Is that the happy situation you want to exist?"

Crown counsel Joseph McKenna did not interrupt Dawe during his final submission but took great exception to defense counsel's remarks when his turn came to address the jury.

"I regret very much my friend would say such things," McKenna declared. "He used some very strong words—'evasion' and 'equivocate.' I don't think he realized the serious meaning of those words, for there has been none of this in this case."

BRAND OF VILLAINY
"The Crown doesn't conduct cases that way," McKenna said. "You would think these constables were villains and I, an arch villain, if you believed my friend."

McKenna said the prosecution had resorted because the Crown believed Marlow had been grossly negligent and that his negligence had resulted in the Dec. 7 accident on Gorge Road which took the life of 70-year-old Mrs. Jane Taylor, a passenger in another car.

McKenna asked the jury not to be afraid of the word "manslaughter."

"I think sometimes we should have another name. That part, 'slaughter' frightens some people. But don't be afraid of the word and don't shirk your duty."

BETWEEN TIMES

By MONTE ROBERTS

George (Make No Mistake) MacDonald tells of the lady in Vancouver who carried the current trade-in movement to its logical conclusion.

Informed that a downtown store was offering $150 allowance for a cup-and-saucer on a $450 stove, she marched in with three cups-and-saucers and demanded the stove be delivered forthwith.

Since Ralph Allen, the reformed sportswriter, was elevated to the editorial chair of Maclean's, he has made herculean, and largely successful, efforts to peel off its stodgy overcoat and put it to work.

He has tried especially hard to keep the book on top of the news, as nearly as possible within the limits of magazine publication.

But now, I fear, he has gone too far.

An artist in the current issue illustrates an anecdote concerning a beer parlor in Nanaimo, with a thumbnail sketch depicting two characters perched on bar stools. On the bar are a pair of cocktail glasses, and the bartender is polishing a martini mixer.

Thus Maclean's, no longer satisfied with being on top of the news, has anticipated the liquor plebiscite in B.C. forecast a wet vote, and equipped Nanaimo with the first cocktail lounge in the province.

Most fascinating overheard conversation of the week: Elderly lady to companion in the lobby of the Empress, "Florida in the winter, Victoria in the summer—the same routine year after year after year."

A friend of mine (female type) is recently home after hospitalization. (7 pounds 4 ounces, boy, father doing well.) She had looked forward to one aspect of the visit; she hoped to get a "good rest" when the business proceedings were concluded.

Yesterday I asked her if she felt well-rested.

"In the dawn's early light," she told me, "a loving hand thrust a thermometer in my face. This operation concluded, I snuggled down for more sleep."

"At the exact second that I dropped off, a pitcher of ice water was deposited, tinkling, beside my bed."

"Again I got to sleep, in time to be awakened for a sponge bath."

"I got to sleep again," she said, "and at that second..." I did not hear the balance of her story, having stolen quietly away so she might get a little much-needed rest.

This may be a dirty trick to play on Bob Sinclair, burr-voiced dispatcher at C. & C. taxi—but if you're ever puzzled over how to get to a strange address, call him up. Don't know why he's so good natured, but he'll tell you the shortest and best route—and he knows Victoria and district inside-out.

There is a young lady from Sooke, Whose number's in many a book, She thinks it awful, Should be unlawful, They all want a wife who can cook.

City Firm Offers Free Gear To Raise Point Ellice Bridge

An offer to supply "necessary gear and equipment" for the raising of Point Ellice Bridge has been made by Island Tug & Barge Co.

Harold B. Elworthy, president of the company and spokesman for an industrial and Chamber of Commerce group, made the offer to city council's public works committee Tuesday, when he said present lack of height penalized industry north of the bridge.

He urged if any money is spent on the bridge it be given a 30-foot clearance, in place of the existing 18 at high tide. The latter he said will hurt the future of Victoria industry.

"There's no trick to lifting the bridge," he said. "I don't think it would be costly."

The city would have to build up the piers and change grades of the roadways at either end, he said.

"It can be done but the cost will not be small," Cyril Jones, city engineer, said of the proposals.

Elworthy said B.C. Forest Products were hampered in their shipment of "chips" for paper mills because they could put only 75 per cent loads on barges and had to wait for low tides to clear the bridge decking.

Ald. Percy Scourrah said he appreciated the difficulties but did not know where the money would come from to give the bridge a 30-foot clearance.

A driver won a suspended sentence in police court today after telling Magistrate H. C. Hall he was only minutes away from getting his new license plates.

Harold A. Clarke, 413 Constance, charged with failing to display the current year's license plates, told the court he was on his way to get the new plates when picked up by city police.

Collections in the Victoria City and District branch, Canadian Red Cross campaign had climbed to $37,000 by noon today as canvassers stepped up their efforts to pass the $65,500 minimum objective before the end of the month.

U.S. carrots and cabbages are coming down in price.

Starting March 29, the government is dropping the seasonal duty on the two vegetables, bringing more than a 10 per cent price reduction.

Medium damage occurred on Tuesday when a motorcycle, owned by Kerrie F. G. LeLonde, 3054 Earl Grey, collided with a car driven by Eva K. Heater, 335 Burnside. Collision occurred outside Miss Heater's home. The motorcyclist was slightly injured.

Two Victorians were fined $1 and $2.50 costs in city police court Tuesday for operating radios without licenses.

Charged were Hugh Shirley, 1740 Amphion, and Robert J. Piniger, 1729 Amphion.

A horse show will be staged by the Victoria Riding and Hunt Club on Good Friday, April 11.

The club has made arrangements for a seven-event program to be presented at its Cedar Hill Crossroad grounds at 2.

The program will include riding and jumping events for children as well as adults and a special event for western riders.

India Sun Stove Burns Utilities; Stoking Ends With Science Stroke

By DON INGHAM

Electric stoves, hot plates, electric kettles, and other kilowatt-gobbling devices, are due for the old heave-ho.

Everyone in sunny Victoria will soon be cooking with sun on the front porch.

Prime Minister Nehru of India recently had a meal cooked in his New Delhi home in a solar cooker invented by Indian scientists, which can be mass-produced for 10 bucks.

"A marvellous idea," said G. D. Tite, a Victorian known for his thrift. "I'm gonna get one and be independent."

"Oh no you're not," said a utilities man. "New Delhi has sunshine 270 days per year. What are you going to do on a rainy day?"

"Victoria is the sunniest place in Canada, so we'll do all right for most of the year," Tite answered. "And on the other days we'll use the wind. Touche!"

Tite is right, British scientists are conducting experiments with wind generators in Wales.

And Victoria is recognized as having an over-abundance of wind.

Real estate men are all agog, and it is well known that one smart operator has bought up 72 per cent of the best sun and wind exposures on Southern Vancouver Island.

"Oh no!" gasped Tite. "They've always had me coming, and now they've got me going too. With power rates and land values going sky-high, I guess I'll just live on the beach and eat raw clams."

They took their own beer, and nodded appreciation of Marina Svetlova and her group of dancers between glug-glugs on the bottle.

"Just like a music hall," quipped one man as the heavy fumes of beer wafted over the audience.

"I think they were left over from the Tommy Trinder show," a young lady said.

Death Near as Truck Runs Away

Five Badly Injured When Parksville Shops Wrecked

Special to The Times

NANAIMO, March 19.—Five persons hurt when a loaded logging truck crashed into two stores in Parksville Tuesday are reported resting comfortably today in Nanaimo General Hospital.

They are: Albert Greenard, Coombs, driver of the truck, who suffered two broken legs and internal injuries.

James Saul, 3160 Admirals Road, Victoria, salesman, who received multiple fractures and abrasions.

Frank Sheldrake, proprietor of a jewelry store that was hit, head injuries, cuts, and bruises.

Mrs. Sheldrake, fractured leg and arm injuries.

Frank McLaughlin, jewelry store customer, broken leg and internal injuries.

Also injured was Frank Greenard, son of the truck driver, who was released from hospital Tuesday after treatment.

The truck also wrecked Mickey's Dress Shop, but the proprietor, Mrs. N. M. White, saw it coming and fled.

The accident occurred when the truck, loaded with short pulp logs, failed to make a corner.

Parksville Volunteer Fire Department, headed by Fire Chief Art Butler, made the rescue.

Logs had to be moved and the truck righted before the injured persons could be reached.

Arrangements are being made to have the Winnipeg Ballet give two performances in Victoria in May.

The nationally-known troupe is considering plans for a western tour. The Victoria Kiwanis Club has taken initial steps to have the company include Victoria on its list of stopping places and has offered to sponsor two performances here.

The shows would be given during the last week of May.

Funeral service for Reginald P. E. Hammond, popular Victoria High School teacher, will be held Thursday morning at 11 at McCall Brothers' Funeral Chapel.

The service will be attended by a large number of pupils from the school, as well as by many former students.

Rev. Moir A. J. Waters, of First United Church, will officiate. Pallbearers will be Dr. Harry Hickman, principal of the school, and Colin Curtis.

Remains will be cremated. The family has requested no flowers be sent but has suggested friends so disposed might contribute to the John H. Lawrence Research Fund of the University of California, Berkeley, Calif.

Mr. Hammond died Monday at 44. He is survived by his wife, Mary, and three children, Jean, 12; Glen, nine, and Lynn, six, at 2630 Hibben's Close; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Percy T. Hammond, 2122 McNeill, and one sister, Mrs. Colin Curtis.

BEER, BALLET NOVELTY MIX

A man and two women showed a highly-amused portion of a theatre audience on Tuesday night how to enjoy ballet to the full.

They took their own beer, and nodded appreciation of Marina Svetlova and her group of dancers between glug-glugs on the bottle.

"Just like a music hall," quipped one man as the heavy fumes of beer wafted over the audience.

Real estate men are all agog, and it is well known that one smart operator has bought up 72 per cent of the best sun and wind exposures on Southern Vancouver Island.

They took their own beer, and nodded appreciation of Marina Svetlova and her group of dancers between glug-glugs on the bottle.

Penny Lets a Salesman Do The Talking for a Change

By PENNY SAVER

Step right up, ladies and gentlemen! It's the greatest cleaner you ever saw!

Yes, folks! You can now, for the first time on Vancouver Island, get a fluid that cleans, polishes and preserves. Just one easy application will do the trick.

Come a little closer friends and see for yourself what this cleaner will do for your floor surfaces and furniture.

Now watch me as I wipe it on this table here. You will notice that I just wipe it on and then wipe it off. It's as easy as that.

Yes, sir, you will see it doesn't leave a liquid or water mark and when you have tried it in your home you will also discover that it will resist heat.

Observe, ladies and gentlemen, that I am now applying this miraculous liquid cleaner to a square of linoleum. See the reaction? When I wipe it off the surface is sparkling clean.

Note this, too, friends, you will get the same results if you use the cleaner on hardwood, leather or painted surfaces. They will have a lustre you hardly thought was possible to have again on older articles and surfaces around your home.

And that's not all. Yes, sir, this dandy tin of liquid will also do wonders for windows, mirrors, enameled and porcelain surfaces. And don't forget about the tiles or your car.

Yes, it will serve you well.

This cleaner contains no abrasives.

If you have watched me carefully you will have discovered that I get the best results by applying the cleaner with a damp cloth and then by rubbing the surface lightly. Another wise procedure to follow is to wipe over the surface immediately with a clean cloth to produce a clean preserved high gloss finish.

I'm telling you folks, there's nothing like it.

A pint tin is 97 pennies and a quart is $1.69.

Thank you, friends, for your kind attention!

Mount Newton—Aims of past and present education were contrasted by Inspector J. E. Brown at a recent meeting of Mount Newton P.T.A. While past education was the "discipline of the mind," stressing reading, writing and arithmetic for the common man's child in elementary school and preparation for a few leaders in secondary school, present education seeks to develop the student's whole personality and ultimately point the way for a better world. The inspector also touched on the value and importance of objective tests and the possibilities of school organization in Sanitich. A request will be forwarded to the school board to consider providing a school bus for six extra-curricular activities each year. Mrs. W. J. Hakin, convener of a recent telephone card party, reported proceeds amounted to approximately $50, and Mrs. W. McNally announced that $37 was realized from a tea and contest arranged by Keating members.

HULL, England (CP).—For years, 60-year-old Mrs. Blanche Carmichael faithfully dusted the war-souvenir shell on her bedroom mantelpiece.

All through the years she handled it with care—but recently she dropped it. There was a crack and a small flame, and Mrs. Carmichael went for the police.

A police sergeant gingerly lifted the shell and found a spent match underneath. The shell had ignited the match when it fell.

Don't Need So Much Hubby; Get Rid of the Surplus Part

You can have more love with less husband—and have it longer.

My Tubby Hubby Diet is designed to help you regain that romantic feeling toward him by digging out that trim figure from the fat you have put on him since you married him.

After 12 days of adherence to this satisfying diet, Hubby will be from 7 to 12 pounds lighter and on his way toward the goal he should seek, a goal which should let you have him longer—since overweight does shorten life.

You'll find him gay and puppyish—feeling a lot younger and more romantic—when you get him down to size.

Virtually every day of every year, I keep writing to my readers about the latest ideas in diet, exercise and beauty which will make them more attractive and more youthful.

NEW PROBLEM

You'll find that now you would all be little things with a figure that is the envy of the town—and many of you are, as I have learned from your letters.

That probably is what has created the new problem. I'm hearing from every side. How, you women are wondering, can you trim Hubby down to a size that will make all your friends say, "Aren't they an attractive couple?" instead of "I wonder why she ever married a fat man like that?"

I know the answer. You didn't marry such a man but you've helped him get that way and don't tell me you raised him to suit yourself.

So keep him right on this diet for the 12 days. It will be published.

YOU'LL LOVE THE WAY YOU LOOK...

Pretty as a picture with exciting new detail, whirl skirts, lovely necklines, fancy sleeves in all this spring's wanted fabrics, including wool. See yours now.

Institute Hears the Grenfell Story

The life story of Dr. Wilfred Grenfell, medical missionary and humanitarian, was recalled by Mrs. Richard Spicer in a talk given at the social meeting of Lake Hill Women's Institute.

For six years prior to their arrival in Victoria, two years ago, Mrs. Spicer and her husband, Dr. Spicer, were with the Grenfell Mission, and up and down the vast mission field of Labrador they felt the impress of Dr. Grenfell's work among the Eskimos, the Newfoundland fisher-folk and their families.

Dr. Grenfell began his work in 1891, and in his first summer among the 35,000 fishermen he, single handed, treated 900, the speaker said.

As here he found great poverty and sickness. Much larger funds were needed to carry on the work, so he went to Newfoundland's government, then to England. His eloquent appeals met with response; he returned not only with money but with additional medical and nursing aides. The mission was firmly established. Dr. Grenfell's unremitting, heroic, and cheerful labors in his vast mission were graphically recalled by Mrs. Spicer. Travelling everywhere by small boat, along the coast, or by dogsled over the frozen land between the widely-scattered settlements, he was not only physician and friend, but pastor, magistrate, and social counsellor.

Mrs. Spicer showed examples of Eskimo craftwork, moccasins, "Sunday" boots of soft baby seal, embroidered parkas, and walrus ivory carvings.

The speaker was introduced by president Mrs. T. W. McGregor, and Mrs. M. Cowan moved the vote of thanks. The guest-day audience included a delegation from Royal Oak Institute. A reminder of St. Patrick's Day was given in the shamrock motif of the table decorations, tea being conveyed by Mesdames E. Glover, W. S. Webster, R. Noble, and J. Stanhope.

Wisner Invites House Debate On Drug Issue

The British Columbia Legislature this week or early next week will hold a full debate on all phases of the narcotics problem in the province.

Attorney-General Gordon Wisner said in the House Tuesday he would be glad to hear the opinions of all members on "this very important problem."

He made the statement when E. E. Winch (C.C.F., Burnaby) rose to ask questions about a $50,000 appropriation for narcotic drug treatment in the Attorney-General's departmental estimates.

Noting Winch had a resolution on the order paper dealing with narcotics, Wisner asked if he would defer debate until the resolution was called. Winch agreed and Wisner expressed a desire to hear as many opinions as possible.

It is expected the Attorney-General at that time may reveal details of the proposed drug addict treatment centre for Vancouver.

George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, who said that a "serious" situation faces this country unless markets can be found for Canadian production, including livestock and dairy products.

He spoke shortly before members voted 139 to 57 against a Social Credit motion criticizing the government for "failure" to provide "adequate" inducements for the expansion of food production and economic and orderly distribution of food supplies.

Members adopted "on division"—without a recorded vote—the traditional main motion. It called for adoption of an address thanking the governor-general for reading the speech from the throne at the opening of the new session Feb. 28 last.

During the 10-day debate, members rejected a Progressive Conservative motion criticizing the government for continuing to impose "excessive" taxes, for refusing to eliminate "waste and extravagance" and for "failing" to deal effectively with inflation with the high cost of living.

Also defeated was a C.C.F. motion criticizing the government for "failing" to introduce a national health insurance program at this session.

DURING EMERGENCY
A second C.C.F. motion, also defeated, called for establishment of a Federal authority to control the prices and marketing of meat and dairy products during the emergency caused by the outbreak of foot-and-mouth disease in Saskatchewan.

End of the debate cleared the way for tabling of the 1952-53 estimates of expenditures and for the consideration of legislation sponsored by the government and private members.

Finance Minister Abbott is expected to table the estimates today before debate is launched on bills and resolutions sponsored by private members.

In his speech, Drew said that to hear some members of the cabinet talk one would believe there are no major troubles facing Canada. "They should come out of their 'ministerial dreamland,'" he said, and drop their "attitude of unreality."

Canada should take the initiative and call a Commonwealth conference on trade. He agreed with Agriculture Minister Gardiner, who once had said that something should be done to make the Canadian dollar and the British pound interchangeable.

THE TIMES

WITH TOMMIE WALTERS

A recent survey report on Canadian radio listening turns up some interesting points. The survey was conducted by Elliott-Haynes Ltd. from their regular continuing monthly surveys of Canadian audiences between Nov. 1, 1950, and Oct. 31, 1951, and deals solely with "radio audiences tuned to programs produced by the CBC." The figures do not include U.S.-produced programs carried on the CBC or programs produced independently by Canadian producers such as "Don Wright Chorus" or "N.I.L. Hockey." The figures for the year under study show that all CBC-produced programs between 9 a.m. and 10 p.m. weekdays and 6 p.m. and 10 p.m. Sundays, averaged only 18.5 per cent of Canadian sets in use, while CBC commercials averaged 39.9 per cent.

An analysis, in this report, of the CBC's program schedules in the period indicated, reveals that 82.2 per cent of program time was devoted to CBC-produced programs, 72 per cent being news and other non-commercial programs, and 10 per cent being Canadian commercial programs. These programs collectively obtained 18.5 per cent of sets in use when they were broadcast—obtaining 11.88 per cent of total radio listening in Canada.

A spokesman for the Canadian Association of Broadcasters points out the CBC now receives a government subsidy from general tax funds of $6,250,000 per year in addition to $5,500,000 a year in license fees and just under $2,500,000 in commercial revenue annually. The CAB statement emphasizes that "this subsidy of over $14,000,000 a year is spent to attract an average of only 11.9 per cent of Canadian listening. Thus more than 80 per cent of Canadians benefit in no way from this subsidy since they apparently do not care to tune in CBC programs." The CBC feels they must present such programs as they do now, in the interests of the listening Canadian public, educationally, entertainingly and culturally. "If we didn't," they ask, "who would?" But should such large sums be spent annually by the CBC for the enlightenment and entertainment of so small a representation of the listening audience? The CAB statement goes on to say that "more than 80 per cent of Canadians voluntarily tune to the programs of the independent or non-government stations who do not share in any way in either of the subsidies. In fact they exist solely from their commercial revenue as do all other forms of publication." If these reports are in order, as apparently they are, then it would seem the CBC would be well advised to revise their program policies to conform to the tastes of the majority of the Canadian listening audience.

Truce Talks Said Gaining Some Ground

MUNSAN, Korea, March 19 (AP).—Allied spokesmen reported truce negotiators were reported to be making some ground today on the 10 ports of entry to be used during a Korean armistice.

United Nations negotiators proposed a compromise. The Communists promised to think it over. At the end of their 53-minute discussion, Col. Andrew J. Kinney said:

"It appears that we are in agreement on the better part of the ports question."

Another group of staff officers met for only a few minutes because neither side could answer a series of questions asked previously by the other concerning exchange of prisoners.

Unverified rumors circulated around the truce village of Panmunjom that some new step was in the making to break the long deadlock over prisoners.

Communist newspaper men, who often reflect the view of Red delegates, talked of a truce agreement in three or four weeks.

Three major disagreements stood in the way of an armistice. The key disputes:

1. Voluntary repatriation of prisoners as demanded by the Allies versus forced repatriation demanded by the Reds.

2. The question of whether Communists should be allowed to repair their damaged airfields during a truce.

3. Communist insistence on Soviet Russia as a neutral nation to supervise an armistice and U.N. refusal to consider it.

BEDTIME STORY

by Thornton W. Burgess

Mrs. Hooty the great horned owl had failed to do what she intended to do and had started to do. She had been sure, absolutely sure, that Bobby Coon was hiding in some thick brush waiting for a chance to safely climb to her nest in a tall tree to get her precious babies. So when someone of about the size of Bobby had come out of that brush into a little open place in the moonlight she had swooped swiftly and fiercely, intending to take him by surprise and tear him with her big curved claws and hooked bill, and pound him with her stout wings. She hadn't waited for even one good look at him.

At the very last moment she had seen who it was, and that she was making a dreadful mistake. This wasn't Bobby Coon. No, sir, this wasn't Bobby Coon. It was the Untouchable One. Such a frantic flapping of great wings as she tried to check herself and avoid hitting him! She came just as close to striking him as was possible and not quite touch him. And, oh, how glad she was that she hadn't touched him!

Yet as she sat there shivering at the thought of what might have been she snapped her bill angrily.

So now as she snapped her bill she began to scold the Untouchable One. "You have no business over here," she hissed.

The Untouchable One merely grunted and shuffled along to the foot of a tree. There he stopped and looked, still grunting and paying no attention whatever to Mrs. Hooty. He acted just as if he didn't know she was anywhere near him. He seemed to be undecided whether or not to climb that tree. Mrs. Hooty stopped snapping her bill and hissing. She held her tongue. If he climbed that tree he would be likely to stay up there a long time and she would at least know where he was. Her babies would be quite safe from him.

He stood up as if about to climb, then changed his mind. Slowly, he shuffled over to another tree. The same thing happened over again. Mrs. Hooty lost patience. Losing patience is a bad thing to do. It was another mistake.

"Why don't you go home where you belong and leave other people alone?" she cried.

The Untouchable One stopped and looked up at Mrs. Hooty. His eyes were dull and looked like shoe buttons. "Do you own the Green Forest?" he asked mildly.

Who was the Untouchable One? Don't you know? Have you guessed? It was Prickly Porky the Porcupine. Of course. And he was untouchable because of the thousand little spears always hidden in his coat.

Stage, Screen Feature Irish Life and Love

There wasn't a lad or lass in the Fox Theatre St. Patrick's night who wasn't green with envy of the Irish.

And for good reason, too. Bert Nixon, manager of the Fox Theatre, with the co-operation of the United Commercial Travellers and radio station CKDA, was presenting an all-Irish program.

The show was headlined by a 45-minute "live" broadcast, "Tippie's Scrapbook," conducted by Tom O'Neil, direct from the theatre stage.

Midway through the program, Ed Farey presented Bobby Raynor and Heather Graham, winners of the Dad's Cookie contest, with shiny, new bicycles.

On the screen, the movie audience saw four Irish features headed by "The Daughter of Rosie O'Grady." Other features were a travelogue entitled, "Roamin' Through Northern Ireland," and two cartoons, "Songs of Erin," and "Wearin' of the Grin."

Twenty-five per cent of proceeds goes to the United Commercial Travellers' welfare fund.

The all-Irish show was repeated Tuesday night and will be presented again tonight.

Vancouver's Bill Fails to Hurdle House Committee

The Legislature will not deal with Vancouver's new city charter at the current session. The private bills committee Tuesday voted 6-5 to defer action on the charter because only essential legislation is being dealt with at this time.

C.C.F. leader Harold Winch's motion to bring the charter before the House before prorogation was defeated by a similar vote.

He said he "strenuously objected to Vancouver being stalemated because of the whims of a government that doesn't know where it is going."

This was the only matter before the committee. Chairman J. G. Gould (Vancouver-Burrard), said the Diocese of Vancouver has withdrawn its application for incorporation of Holy Rosary University.

'Dude Ranch' Topping Bill

An original dance drama, "Dude Ranch," will highlight the annual Victoria High School spring concert to be held March 21 and 22 in the auditorium.

Band, ensemble and choral numbers will be given by various school groups. They include: Victoria High School Band, under R. C. Grant, conductor; Senior String Ensemble, under Miss D. Hopgood; Concert Choir, under Miss D. Douglas; School Orchestra, Miss D. Hopgood; School Concert Dance Club, Miss S. Stanley.

The concert choir comprising boys and girls of various nationalities including Swedish and East Indian, will present the familiar and lovely songs of the Hebrides.

The dance drama "Dude Ranch," tells the story of a city girl and a cowboy. There are 20 girls in the cast and all have contributed some dance ideas to the number. Taking the leads are Chris Boyd, Sheila Hardie and Susan Harrison.

HONG KONG, March 19 (AP)—The troopship Empress of Australia arrived here Monday with Britain's Seventh Royal Tank Regiment and 32nd Medium Royal Artillery Regiment, both for service in Hong Kong. They replace the Third Royal Tank and 58th Royal Artillery Regiments.

Death Claims Writer Of Famed Song Hits

NEW YORK, March 19 (AP)—Percy Wenrich, 72, one of the United States' top song writers for years, and composer of such all-time hits as "Put On Your Old Grey Bonnet," died Monday night.

Some of his other best-known tunes were "Moonlight Bay" and "When You Were a Tulip."

B.C. TEACHER-TRAINING RATE IN STEP WITH SCHOOL DEMAND

The supply of new teachers in the province is sufficient to take care of the demand, Hon. W. T. Straith, education minister, told the House Tuesday.

From 350 to 400 teachers are required each year and a like number of classrooms, he explained. Total of 646 new teachers will be available for posting to schools this year.

From the total strength of 6,500 teachers, Straith said there is about a 10 per cent loss annually.

Canadian Troops Find European Soldiering Conditions 'No Soft Touch'

Men of Canada's special infantry brigade in Europe are finding life no "soft touch" now that they have swung into a rugged round-the-clock training program.

At the present time we are at a training area on the frigid, cold Baltic coast and concentrating on tactical exercises and field firing," writes Capt. Royce S. Marshall, Victoria, of the Highland battalion of the force, on one of the new five-cent air "forces" letters, to this reporter.

He says that the other day (March 10) the Victoria Canadian

Scottish Company put in an attack "that was certainly as good as I've seen before at any time and I'm sure the regiment has every right to be proud of its new representatives on active service."

Capt. Marshall says the boys are on the go night and day and climb into the "sack" with sighs of exhaustion.

He was glad to report that in Junior N.C.O. courses held in January and February Scottish company personnel topped the school.

In the first course the two N.C.O.s who headed the list in a tie were Cpl. G. E. McLaren, Victoria, and Cpl. A. McBride, of Ontario. In the second course Cpl. D. A. Coddington, Victoria, was top man.

VICTORIAN COMMANDS.

The writer reported that Major J. D. M. "Doug" Gillan, Victoria Canadian Scottish overseas veteran, is now commanding the Scottish company.

En route from the billet area at Hanover, Germany, Capt. Marshall said they passed through Hamburg.

"This is, or rather was, a lovely city. It is far different from many of the German cities, for the buildings are more modern; looks like it had been planned."

He continues: "Now there are large areas which look like huge parking lots about the size of our Empress Hotel grounds."

"Men have been working clearing away the debris left by bombings since 1945. They are only about half-finished. Damage in Hamburg looks like the worst I've seen so far—but, of course, every new scene seems worse than the others."

• Chances are you're putting up—unnecessarily—with the functionally-caused pains, cramps and weak, "no good" feelings of menstruation!

It has a quieting effect on uterine contractions that often cause menstrual pain!

MAJOR J. D. M. GILLAN

Lady Patricia Ramsay is proud of her Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry battalions.

This is shown in a letter she forwarded recently to Maj.-Gen. W. H. S. Macklin, adjutant-general of the Canadian army, following receipt of a framed copy of the U.S. Presidential Citation awarded the Patricia's 2nd Battalion in Korea, for their fighting qualities.

Capt. George Harrison, secretary of the local Patricia branch of the nation-wide association, this week received an enlarged photographic copy of Lady Ramsay's letter.

PRIDE EXPRESSED

It says in part:

"Needless to say, I have received the information of this signal honor to the splendid exploits of the battalion in Korea with the greatest pride and satisfaction."

"It is proof, if any were required, that this new battalion can and does hold its own with the same spirit which has always characterized the long-established 1st Battalion on active service."

"As their colonel-in-chief I am indeed proud of them," signed "believe me, Patricia Ramsay."

TIME MARCHES ON

As the days March on, each does bring.
A little more sun to flower the Spring;
The blossoms are starting to daub the plum,
A perfect painting 'twill soon become;
And then the cherry, as Spring bombards,
Wedding the gardens to the boulevards.
This giant brush on flower & tree,
Fills with an eagerness & expectancy;
So very soon now, yes we'll be treated,
The paintings unveiled, the whole scene completed.

Yes, high hopes we have on mornings like these,
With the robins skirmishing up in the trees.
It won't be long, just a day or two,
The yellows, the violets, the powder-blue;
Already these yellows, each daffodil,
Reflect in each stroke the Master's skill.
And the brush laid aside, it seems so planned,
Each talkative trumpet shirred by hand.

So, whether a garden or unseen place,
All equally dressed & trimmed with lace,
So none can brag—no NOT one yellow,
That it is better than its fellow.
Close by the tulips, the yellows have beckoned,
A race with the hyacinths to see who'll be second.
Straight the tulips inch to the sky,
By contrast the Artist will hold their heads high;
And a crispness is added, from the earth's metals.
So they don't nod, but point with their petals.
Yet the same rhythm within there is found,
When they arc themselves & droop to the ground.
To please melody in her idle hours,
When she takes them indoors & calls them cut-flowers.

Yes, high hopes we have, as signs we seek.
Robin carols we'll hear, oh may-be next week.
We'll wake up one morning with nothing to fear,
This promise on earth... TO SEE & HEAR.

Yes, high hopes we have, as signs we seek.
Robin carols we'll hear, oh may-be next week.
We'll wake up one morning with nothing to fear,
This promise on earth... TO SEE & HEAR.

In Line for Top Awards

SHELLEY WINTERS

VIVIEN LEIGH

It's Oscar time in Hollywood. Thursday night movieland's top awards for acting ability will be presented, a presentation which for some obscure reason seems to catch the interest of all Canadians, young or old. High in the ranks of those expected to cop major Oscars are Shelley

Winters, Marlon Brando and Vivien Leigh. Miss Leigh and Brando star in "A Streetcar Named Desire" currently showing in Victoria. Sensational new star Shelley Winters is the subject of a series of Erskine Johnson articles running in the Times Saturday Magazine.

Upside Down Movies, Snubs, Bearded Strangers Part of Hollywood Classic

HOLLYWOOD, March 19 (UP).—If history holds, the boners pulled at the 22nd annual Academy Awards ceremonies Thursday night will furnish most of the drama.

Vivien Leigh and Marlon Brando are favored to make the headlines for the best acting of 1951. But Oscar time is also the night when somebody doesn't follow the script.

One year ago producer-director Cecil B. DeMille brought down the house when he introduced the ambassador from China as being from Japan. Award-givers have never forgotten the time winner Olivia De Havilland snubbed sister Joan Fontaine backstage . . . or the year the projectionist got excited and showed the winning movies upside down.

Producer Samuel Goldwyn, master of the tongue slip, once introduced composer Hoagy Carmichael as "Hugo." Another year the police guarding the entrance kept out nominee Director John Farrow by mistake.

At the 1950 event a bearded stranger posed happily with winners Broderick Crawford and Olivia De Havilland, while news photographers clicked away. Nobody ever did find out who he was.

Stars' acceptance speeches often have more drama than the dialogue from winning movies.

Fredric March, who may win this year for "Death of a Salesman," tied with the late Wallace Beery in 1932, the first and only tie in Oscar history. By coincidence the March and Beery families had each just adopted a child.

"Which makes it seem a little odd," March told the audience, "that Beery and I were given awards for the best male performances of the year."

Mary Pickford was struck speechless when she won in 1932. Greer Garson orated for 45 minutes when she won for "Mrs. Miniver." She and other stars said their co-workers should have won the Oscars.

Writer Donald Ogden Stewart put an end to that with his speech, "I want it understood that I alone am responsible for the success of 'Philadelphia Story.' Nobody turned a finger to help me."

The academy now requests the stars to say practically nothing.

TUBBY HUBBY'S DIET, PAGE 14

EISENHOWER WINS STUNNING SUPPORT

MINNEAPOLIS, March 19 (AP).—With nearly two-thirds of the vote in, write-in candidate Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower today had won an amazing 39 per cent of the Republican total in Tuesday's Minnesota presidential primary election.

"Favorite-Son" Harold E. Stassen, whose name was printed on the ballot, got about 42 per cent.

Senator Robert Taft (Rep.-Ohio), whose name was not printed on the ballot, got 8.4 per cent of the Republican vote.

The drive for the write-in vote had started only last Friday following the Attorney-General's ruling that such votes would count.

Despite Eisenhower's showing against Stassen, a former Minnesota governor, the election will not automatically mean any national convention delegates for him. No delegate provision for write-in candidates is contained in the primary law.

In the Democratic write-in voting, Senator Estes Kefauver (Dem.-Tenn.) had a heavy margin over President Truman. However, observers felt that much of the Truman vote had gone to Senator Hubert Humphrey (Dem.-Minn.), whose name was the only one printed on the Democratic ballot. Humphrey had announced he would turn over his delegation to Truman should the President decide to run again.

Salvage King Has Stricken Ship in Tow

Victoria's sea-going tug Salvage King is now on its way to Portland, Ore., towing the disabled freighter Ss. Darton, which she picked up at 9 Tuesday night 200 miles west of Columbia River lights.

On Tuesday the U.S. Coast Guard cutter Winona put a line aboard the stricken vessel, and kept her head into the wind until the Salvage King arrived on the scene.

The tow originally was to be made to Vancouver. Officials of Pacific Salvage Ltd., operators of Salvage King, did not know when a landfall would be made, Darton lost her screw Sunday in rough weather during a voyage from Japan to Portland with a crew of 50 aboard.

Water Chief Davis Quits; Has New Post

Ralph Davis resigned as chief commissioner of Greater Victoria Water District today.

In a letter to Reeve Joseph Casey, chairman, and members of the board, which met this afternoon, he asked that his resignation take effect Thursday.

Davis, centre of a civic storm in January when Mayor Claude Harrison moved to cut his salary, will take a post with Stevenson & Kellogg management engineers at Vancouver.

He gave no reasons for his resignation in the letter but stated later they were "personal."

He plans to go immediately to his new post.

As the board's first commissioner, Davis has been linked closely with development of the water district since its inception in September, 1948. He was appointed chief commissioner in December and took over the post Jan. 1, 1949.

The first board meeting of 1952 ended in a blow-up with Davis stating he would resign when the mayor's motion that his basic salary be cut by $500 was passed. The board also cut out $400 cost-of-living bonus, a car valued at $600 a year and $120 a year club dues.

Casey asked him to remain until a special committee reported on the matter. Davis agreed.

The committee recommended the basic salary of $7,500 be reinstated. It passed by a 4-3 vote but the other cuts remained.

Davis was educated at Oak Bay High, Victoria College and University of British Columbia. He graduated in civil engineering with a B.A.Sc. in 1935. He spent three years in mining work in B.C. He served the city for two and a half years and was acting assistant city engineer when he left to join the R.C.A.F. in October, 1941.

He was in aeronautical engineering and spent three years overseas. He was discharged in October, 1945, when the rank of flight lieutenant.

On his return to the city's employ Davis was appointed assistant water commissioner, a post he held until taking over duties of chief water commissioner for the Greater Victoria district.

THE STAR WAS ANGRY

Barbara Ann, Andra Feud Over Ice Show

VANCOUVER, March 19 (CP).—Barbara Ann, the Canadian figure skater, and Andra McLoughlin, who disappeared last night, are at odds over the ice show.

Barbara Ann, who won the world championship in 1950, is scheduled to appear here tonight and tomorrow night.

Club officials said Barbara Ann had promised some time ago to appear in their show. It was only a few days ago, they said, that she found she could take time off from her own show to appear here.

WANTS TO STAR

But the 17-year-old Andra and her mother say that isn't so. Andra, her mother says, signed strictly with the understanding she would be the star.

"Andra is sick—just sick with shock," her mother said Tuesday.

day in a telephone interview from Kamloops, B.C. "She is so shocked and so hurt she hasn't slept for two nights and can't eat."

But when she arrived in Vancouver, the youngster from Colorado Springs, Colo., who now makes New York her home, said she wouldn't back out.

"I was all set to go straight home, but I came to Vancouver in the first place to repay the Indians for their kindness to me last year, so I could hardly walk out on them," she said.

"They made me Princess Sesak Yela-Ann (traveling feather) when I was here last year, so I agreed to headline the show if the club would give my Indian friends a new piano and me expenses."

"This is the second year in a row they have promised me the lead and both times they have brought in Barbara Ann at the last moment."

GOING TO STAY

"My mom and dad still don't want me to skate, but I made a promise to my Indian friends, so I'm going to stay."

"But I'm not mad at Barbara Ann—just mad."

'Carefully Inspected' Cattle To Be Allowed

By GORDON FORBES

Agriculture Minister Harry Bowman announced in the Legislature today the Government has passed an order-in-council approving partial relaxation of B.C.'s livestock embargo.

The order is effective immediately, but it may take "a day or so" for the necessary regulations to be compiled.

Imports, he said, will be allowed under severe restrictions and careful inspection.

Bowman, who Tuesday night told the House he would not be able to make an announcement until Thursday or later, said after further investigation this morning it was decided the ban could be relaxed and a special cabinet meeting was called.

The minister said regulations will require that shippers must get a certificate signed by a federal inspector before bringing animals or carcasses into the province.

The certificates will ensure the animals are free from foot-and-mouth disease.

Shippers must also have a permit from the provincial department of agriculture before transporting any meat or livestock within the province.

B.C. has been given assurance by Ottawa that all animals will be thoroughly checked for disease. No animals will come from anywhere near the infected Saskatchewan area, Bowman said.

B.C. will require that all animals be slaughtered immediately after arrival.

Federal Estimates Hit $4,000,000,000 Mark

OTTAWA, March 19 (CP).—Canadian government expenditures are expected to hit a record peacetime total of $4,335,796,809 in the 1952-53 fiscal year beginning April 1.

The expenditure total, including $2,106,000,000 for defense, was given by Finance Minister Abbott today in tabling in the Commons the estimates for the coming year.

Expenditures for the current year were estimated at $3,730,587,837, but Mr. Abbott said, the totals were not strictly comparable. The 1952-53 estimates contained no provision for payments to the provinces under federal provincial taxation agreements.

The defense estimate of $2,106,000,000 compared with $1,728,000,000 for 1951-52. The totals include expenditures for national defense, defense production and civil defense.

The amount for the navy was $268,000,000 compared with $236,000,000 for the current year; for the army, $332,000,000 compared with $459,000,000; and for the air force $759,000,000 compared with $672,000,000.

NON-DEFENSE ESTIMATES

The amount provided for mutual aid to Allied forces was $324,000,000 compared with $156,000,000 in the current year.

Non-defense expenditures were estimated at $2,249,796,809 compared with $2,002,587,837.

The largest increase shown by a non-defense department was contained in the estimate of the health and welfare department. Expenditures for the coming year are expected to total $727,390,400 compared with $474,925,523, an increase of $252,464,877.

The increase resulted from the new old-age pension program, inaugurated Jan. 1 last, under which pensions of $40 a month are paid to all 70 and over regardless of means.

In a statement issued to the press after the estimates were tabled, Abbott said:

"It may be noted generally that the total requested for what may roughly be termed capital purposes by non-defense departments—that is, for the construction or acquisition of buildings, works and equipment—is approximately $157,000,000, as compared with $145,000,000 in the estimates for the current year, an increase less than the estimated increase in the level of construction costs."

"The figures for the current year, of course, already reflect the special efforts to curtail construction expenditures during the defense emergency, and the figures for the new year indicate the civilian construction program is being held in check despite the seriously inadequate condition of many government buildings, vessels and public works."

Attack North Shore Project

By GORDON FORBES

Premier Johnson, early this afternoon, said he is ready to give serious consideration to the motion of the railway committee of the House that there should be further study of the Pacific Great Eastern Railway extension into Vancouver before the go ahead is given on the highway.

The provincial government, which only Monday re-affirmed its policy on a Squamish-Vancouver highway instead of a P.G.E. extension, may be weakening in the face of severe criticism from inside and outside the party.

The railway extension has emerged as a major issue of the current session. The Progressive Conservative and C.C.F. and several Liberals are against the government's decision to build the highway this year instead of the railway.

The change in policy was indicated in the legislature's railway committee this morning when Walter Hendricks (Govt. Nelson-Creston), succeeded in getting passed a motion calling for further investigation to determine if a highway and railway can be built along Howe Sound. The motion also asked that the highway project be held up until further efforts are made to get permission to build a Squamish-Vancouver highway through the Vancouver watershed.
